Senate Group Passes Bill To Draft Millions

42,000,000 Would Be Registered; 1,500,000
Trained First Year.

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 23.—Compulsory military training moved a long step nearer reality today when the senate military committee approved a revised Burke-Wadsworth bill providing for registration of 42,000,000 men, of whom 1,500,000 would be drafted in the first year.

Details remain to be worked out, but in the main the measure calls for:

1. Registration of all males between 18 and 64.
2. Actual conscription of about 1,500,000 men between 21 and 30 during the first year, starting October 1, 1940. There are an estimated 11,500,000 between these ages.
3. A training period of one year for those selected.
4. Base pay equal to that of the lower grades of the regular armed forces, starting at $21 a month.
5. Later draftees to be chosen from the 21 to 45 age groups.

To Senate Next Week.
Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, chairman of the committee, predicted that the measure would be ready for senate consideration next week. Sheppard did not announce the committee vote, but said there were "few dissenting" voices.

In explaining the measure to reporters, Brigadier General W. E. Shedd, assistant chief of staff, said that the men would be classified for exemptions by local boards, similar to the World War draft boards. Men with families, he said, or men employed in national defense work would be placed in deferred groups.

The War Department contemplates that youths between 18 and 21 and then between 45 and 64 would be available for home defense service. Legislation providing this probably will be submitted to congress later.

Trained by Guard.
The job of training the draftees, Shedd said, probably would require the services of the entire National Guard. He added, however, that mobilization of the guard would require other legislation.

The committee measure would not interfere with voluntary enlistments in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps. Men eligible for the draft also could volunteer for the one-year training period.

If world conditions become worse, General Shedd said, "we might have to train more."

The President would have authority under the measure to determine the age groups to be registered and the ages and numbers of men to be actually trained. After a year of training, a draftee would be assigned to a reserve unit for 10 years, or until he reached 45; and would be subject to additional training.

Paris Today

(Walter Kerr, who was a member of the New York Herald Tribune's Paris bureau when the city was surrendered, has sent this uncensored account of life in German-occupied France by clipper plane from Lisbon, where he arrived July 15.)

By WALTER KERR.

LISBON, July 16.—German-occupied France is an economically twisted country, with its millions of people broken in spirit and doped with propaganda, groping about in an effort to reorganize their lives as best they can.

They have little money. Their homes are destroyed, inaccessible or unhappy until a long search brings news of a missing father, brother or son, who may be buried by a roadside in a grave marked by a rifle or bayonet or guarded in an overcrowded prison camp.

Thousands and thousands are out of work. Many are living on credit. Families are scattered. Transportation is available only to a few. Communications are out of reach. The food is poor.

Men and women are living under restrictions such as they never knew before and showing little resistance. They are concerned more with their daily needs and discussions among themselves as to what caused the collapse of their country.

The German army rules. All communication and transportation facilities are in its hands. It controls the essentials by right of requisition and superior force, and the non-essentials by the simple fact that it has all the easy money; that is, it is well provided with paper marks that have no value anywhere except in the occupied areas, not even in Germany itself.

The army is working night and day for the coming attack on England. Everything is subordinated to this preparation: Food for the masses, transportation of refugees back home, hospital care. And while long trainloads of men and munitions run all the time, thousands of Dutch, Belgian and French cars carry soldiers about, a French-language press and radio controlled from Berlin keeps telling the people how much the German army is doing for the people and the millions of refugees.

It is true the army is helping. Daily it takes Belgians to the north in Belgian trucks it captured on its march through the Low Countries. Thousands are taken home by rail in French rolling stock.

Rivers Studies U. S. Proposes Extra Session Pan-American Of Legislature Colony Control

Teachers Need $4,000,000, He Says; Definite Date Not Set.

By LUKE GREENE.

Governor Rivers indicated yesterday he might call a special session of the legislature before the Democratic primary, September 11, but some of the more seasoned observers expressed considerable doubt that the extra session ever would materialize.

The general opinion was that the chief executive might be sending up a "trial balloon" to see how the public would react to such a suggestion.

Principal object of such a session would be to give the legislators a chance to make good their promise to pay $4,000,000 in teachers' back salaries, the Governor said.

Maybe August 15.

He announced no tentative date for reconvening the law makers, but a source close to the administration said it would probably be around August 15, if the Governor decided to take such a step.

One of the main items of business at special session, it was said, would be the confirmation of the Governor's appointees. There are a number that must be confirmed by the senate, including the Governor's son, E. D. Rivers Jr., who was named chairman of the State Industrial Board, and L. L. Patten, member of the State Highway Board.

Remember Last Year.

Those skeptical of the call pointed out that a year ago the Governor named a tentative date for a special session, but never issued the call, finally casting the idea aside by declaring the international situation overshadowed state problems.

In giving his reason for considering a call at this time, the chief executive explained that the 1939 general assembly sanctioned a resolution for financing teachers' salaries for a full seven-month term in 1938 and 1939 and that the teachers continued to serve because of this resolution, creating a debt of approximately $4,000,000. Rumors concerning a special session were first circulated in a story in The Constitution several days ago, and it was pointed out then that a special session might be held August 15, or at least before the state primary.

Plan Would Keep European Colonies Inviolable Until War Ends.

HAVANA, July 23.—(AP)—The United States proposed today that all American republics join in a mandate over European possessions in the western hemisphere to keep their sovereignty inviolable until Europe's war is over or eventually to give them independence.

At the same time, Bolivia was reported seeking a transcontinental South American railroad which would act in emergencies as an auxiliary to the Panama canal in moving troops and guns from coast to coast.

The joint trusteeship over European colonies in the new world was envisioned in a draft of a convention offered less than a day after the conference of American foreign ministers opened. Broadly, it proposed:

1. That the Americas act as trustees of the European possessions in this hemisphere.
2. That mandates over these possessions be temporary and that they be returned to their original sovereigns as soon as possible, or granted their independence.
3. That the parent mandate commission be set up make recommendations for any military and naval protection deemed necessary to protect the territories from an outside menace.

In a resolution designed to act as a stop-gap until the trusteeship is in operation, the United States foresaw the possibility that some one nation might have to act independently to offset a change in the sovereignty over the European colonies.

As Wynne sat down on the tower, a traffic jam occurred around the prison as cars halted and their drivers and passengers craned necks to look at the convict during the home-going rush hours.

Asked what he intended to do about Wynne, Warden Sanford said:

"He's got a heavy hammer and I don't think it good judgment risking the lives of guards in attempting to dislodge him. Wynne knows he will have to finish his prison camp sentence and took this method of making it known that he'd rather stay in the prison here than leave it."

Clad in the gray denim trousers of the "Big House," he defied all pleas of guards that he come down, remaining high on his perch through the night and into today, when he was to have been a free man again.

His reluctance to accept freedom, however, was explained by prison officials, who said that there is a detainer against him from the Chatham county prison camp, from which he escaped September 25, 1937.

Red-Hot Poker.
His Chatham sentence—four to five years—followed the burglary of an Episcopal minister's apartment, when he threatened to burn the minister's feet with a red-hot poker after the clergyman refused to give him money.

He was arrested by federal authorities in Virginia for violation of the motor vehicle theft law in 1938 and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary here. He began serving his sentence November 2, 1938.

Since 1:30 Yesterday.
According to the warden, Wynne climbed the ladder to the top of the water tower at about 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Wynne promptly took off his shirt and made himself at home high in the air, apparently unmindful of the torrid rays of the mid-July sun.

Presence of the prisoner on the unusual lodging place aroused excitement in the neighborhood of the prison. Wynne was plainly visible from McDonough boulevard. Several persons trained field glasses upon him. Now and then Wynne yelled and waved his shirt at onlookers.

He appeared to be unburned, but Warden Sanford said he had been on the work shift recently, and that for this reason Wynne was used to the sun and apparently undisturbed by the blistering heat.

Federal Pen Preferred to Prison Camp

Was To Have Left U. S. Cell Today; Armed With Hammer.

Armed with a machinist's hammer, a 20-year-old convict yesterday afternoon took refuge on a precarious perch atop the Atlanta federal penitentiary's 100-foot-high water tower, and continued to defy all efforts to dislodge him early this morning.

While prison floodlights brilliantly illuminated the strange drama, the youthful prisoner banged on the tank with the heavy hammer, and waved to hundreds of persons gathered in the streets below. During the day and night, thousands of persons saw the man on the tower.

Identified by Warden J. W. Sanford as Andrew Jackson Wynne, of Savannah, the prisoner showed little effects of his long vigil early this morning and continued performing for the spectators.

HEY! LOOK AT ME!—Armed with a hammer, Andrew Jackson Wynne, 20, took a defiant stand yesterday atop the 100-foot-high water tower at the federal penitentiary. Warden J. W. Wynne's presence on the tower attracted attention of thousands of spectators. He was still on the tower last night.

Finns Demobilize On Reds' Orders

STOCKHOLM, July 24 (Wednesday)—(UP)—Reliable private sources said today that Finland had accepted a Russian ultimatum demanding complete demobilization of the Finnish army.

The reported ultimatum was said to have been presented to Finland several days ago and the demobilization was said to be in progress.

Several officers of the Finnish general staff were in Stockholm. Their presence was understood to be related to the immediate consequences of the purported ultimatum.

Generous Adolf Lets Germans Dance Again

BERLIN, July 23.—(UP)—The German people were told today by an official decree, that they may dance again.

All dancing in the Reich was prohibited early in April at the start of the Norwegian campaign. Now, by Adolf Hitler's permission, Germans may dance in public places on Wednesday and Saturday evenings after 7 o'clock.

Party Bolter Burke, F. D. I. Quips to Pres

Hanes and Douglas Placed Dollars Before Humanity, He Says.

By The Associated Press.
HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 23.—President Roosevelt described political harness too long enough to speak his mind about Senator Edward Burke, Lewis W. Douglas, John W. Hanes and former Senator James A. Reed—four anti-third term Democrats who have teamed up with Wendell L. Willkie.

Prompted entirely by press conference questions, Mr. Roosevelt said he understood that the Democratic party had bolted for Burke; that the administration felt the minds of Douglas, Hanes, former government officials, ran more to dollars than to humanity, and that Reed was well qualified to lead dissident Democrats.

Burke Defeated.
The President was first asked whether the word "bolt" properly described Burke's offer of support for Willkie. He made the remark about the party bolting Burke, then grinned until a roar of laughter at his answer had subsided.

Burke was defeated for renomination in the Nebraska primary by Governor R. L. Cochran. Mr. Roosevelt was reminded, said, of Lew Douglas and John Hanes by an inquiry about how he regarded "this dissent of Jeffersonian Democrats."

Doubts Hanes Vote.
Douglas did not vote Democratic four years ago, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, and he doubted that Hanes did, either. He added that they were honorable and amiable young men who formerly were in the government service.

Mr. Roosevelt was told that Reed had called a meeting of "grass root, Jeffersonian Democrats," in Chicago.

Again? he retorted. It seemed to him, he added, that Reed, who once represented Missouri in the senate, had done much the same thing in 1932 and 1936 and may be in 1928 and so was well qualified from experience.

To Meet Farley.
It was Mr. Roosevelt's first press conference since he accepted a third nomination and told the Democratic convention that he would have little time, because of the international situation, to engage in purely political activities, although he would answer any false political statements that came along.

The President said he expected to confer with James A. Farley in Washington soon, but had given no thought to a successor to Farley, who is giving up the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee to head a corporation to buy the New York Yankees baseball team.

He described as just another story from Chicago a report that Farley would resign Friday as postmaster general.

Asserting that he presumed Henry A. Wallace would continue as secretary of agriculture during

The city editor was squirming in his chair the way he does when the heat is beginning to percolate in the skull.

It was a fatal sign, and one of the staff knew it. A city assignment for somebody else got it," he bawled, and man took refuge behind his paper, hoping he would be overlooked. The phone rang, and when the editor turned back, he was alone. It is a phenomenon well known in newspaper offices. It is known as the evaporating or disappearing staff, and it occurs frequently when some public publicity-seeker is seen to reach the city desk or the city editor, by noises and squirmings, known to be dreaming up an

Now what I want is one of you to put on a pair of shorts and a shirt open at the throat and walk around town and come back and write a piece about how much more comfortable a man would be if he just act sensibly, like men. See what the public reaction is. If anybody glares at you on the street, make a note. If a policeman chases you for disorderly conduct or something, put it in. Now, who will volunteer? Nobody would volunteer. There are veteran reporters in the city who had and would again risked their necks in the pursuit of news. But the thought of displaying their spindly, bearded shanks to the public gaze was more than they could stand. Their allies were morose.

A Volunteer.
Over in the corner, watching a little scene, was Jimmy Kilpatrick. And, like a reporter, he was out when he scents a bad assignment coming, he melted away. Half an hour later Jimmy was back. He had on white sneakers and short, white socks with clocks.

THE PIONEER—With the thermometer soaring, Jimmy Kilpatrick, Constitution employe, grabbed an assignment no other reporters had the courage to take. He strolled around town yesterday in shorts and sports shirt, talking to people to get their reaction to a man dressing comfortably for the hot weather. Lester Deadwyler, above, said the way he felt he'd like to go even further than Jimmy and take all his clothes off.

He had on shorts that struck him halfway between knee and belt-line. He had on a white, wide-meshed shirt, open at the throat and short in the sleeves. He approached the city desk timorously. "How about me," he said.

"My boy, I could kiss you," said the city editor. So Jimmy sallied forth. Nobody paid him any attention, except to gaze at him enviously as he strode, fresh and cool as a spring breeze, down the street toward Five Points.

He stopped folks to talk to them. What, he wanted to know, was on everybody's mind the most—the war, the third-term race—or the heat?

"What war?" they asked, mopping their brows, and "What third term?" they inquired, opening their coats to fan themselves with their hats.

Cool Memories.
"All I can think about in this weather," the people said, "is how nice it was last winter during the snow."

He stopped a lady he knew. "Well, Jimmy," she said. "Are men at last learning some sense about what to wear in hot weather?"

There was one last test to be made. There was a chance that the law would not take kindly to the sight of a man striding about in abbreviated trousers.

So Jimmy approached the officer at Five Points a little fearfully. He asked where the Western Union building was, though he knew where it was all the time.

"Right up there," said Traffic Officer E. T. Tumlin, gesturing with one hand and mopping perspiration with the other. "And," he added, "I wish I had me some britches like them to wear on duty down here. This Five Points is the hottest place this side of Addis Ababa, with no trees around and the sun pouring down."

So that's the story. The moral, if any, is this: With the thermometer soaring up into the 90's and the weatherman predicting no relief in sight, you can dress comfortably if you want to.

Nobody will look at you on the street as if they thought you were crazy. They'll just think you are smart.

AT LAST—Miss Katherine Witt also thought it was a good idea for men to come out of their heavy cocoons and get comfortable these blazing July days. Not knowing it was a test case, she asked Kilpatrick if men at last were getting sensible in the matter of hot-weather dress. As for her, she just wanted to sit in a pool somewhere, eating ice cream cones. She said that's her idea for beating the terrific heat.

Father Asserts Young Convict Died of Beating

Byars Orders Full Investigation of Alleged Blackjacking.

The dead lips of a youthful convict of Georgia's "Little Alcatraz" prison at Dallas, in Paulding county, speaking yesterday through a tearful father, related a story of blackjacking and other mistreatment, which brought orders for a searching investigation from Chairman Grover C. Byars, of the State Board of Penal Correction.

Still not 19 years old, the youth, Paul A. Staffins, died Sunday at Grady hospital, where he was brought Saturday, delirious and desperately ill, from the prison camp.

"He told me," earnestly declared the father, W. A. Staffins, of 1710 De Foor avenue, "that a guard beat him in the head with a black-jack. He kept crying, 'Don't let them beat me—don't let them put chains on me again.' He had a big black blister on his left index finger where he said a guard hit him with a hammer when he didn't shove hard enough on a stalled truck. There were large sores above the ankles made by the clasp of a 'pick' hung on his legs."

Records Say Pneumonia.
Cause of death was given officially at the hospital as pneumonia. The whole record, including the statements of hospital attendants, Byars said, will be sought. Ruling then will be made on holding a public hearing.

Byars was told by W. R. Rickman, attaché of the Brown Funeral Home, 1702 Howell Mill road, where the body was taken, that there was a black mark above the left eye, an injury to the left index finger and discoloration about the ankles.

A cousin of the dead youth, Yancey Yon, made similar declarations, and insisted death was due to internal injuries. He said young Staffins had suffered since childhood from a weak back.

Demands Probe.
"One of the things we'd like to know," said Yon, "is why a young boy was sent to a prison camp especially set up for hardened criminals."

It was not certain yesterday whether the investigation would be broadened to include the practice of convicts at the camp of breaking their legs by fixing a foot beneath a fastener at the end of a bunk and rolling off.

Impressed by the recitals of the father, cousin and undertaker, Byars ordered an aide, H. C. Camp, present at the hearing, to start immediately to probe cause of the death and make a full report to him.

"We will go to the bottom," the chairman told the elder Staffins, shaking his hand consolingly. "We will not permit any prisoner to be mistreated."

Exonerated of Guilt.
Young Staffins was serving a sentence of from five to seven years' imprisonment, imposed for a robbery at Elberton, of which, his cousin said, an elder brother, L. C. Staffins, also convicted, had exonerated him. He was but 17 years old when first tried.

Not until a guard from the camp came to their home last Friday did his family know of Staffins' condition, his father said. Hurrying to the camp, he and a relative found the son with a high fever.

With the aid of Attorney Russell Turner, who also represented him at yesterday's hearing, the father obtained Saturday an order from the corrections board to take the youth in an ambulance to the hospital. Upon arrival there he was in critical condition, attaches said.

Also in the hospital, critically ill, was a sister, Mrs. Jessie Haygood. Every effort was made to prevent her learning of her brother's death, but she came upon a funeral notice in a newspaper.

Yesterday the father hurried from the hearing in Byars' office to the hospital. He had just been told his daughter's condition was worse.

Mercury To Reach Middle 90's; Yesterday's High Was 92.

More hot weather, with the mercury in the middle nineties, is predicted for the city today, the weather bureau reported last night. The only relief in sight is the possibility of scattered local thundershowers late this afternoon, the forecaster said.

Yesterday's high was 92 degrees, reached between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the downtown office of the bureau. A 94-degree high was reported by the municipal airport station.

In other parts of the nation, scattered showers cooled some sections, but most residents of the broad swelterbelt between the Rockies and the Atlantic looked in vain for relief.

Deaths attributed directly to the heat increased to 60 and the total of drownings rose to 166.

In Chicago the highest mark of the summer—95—was registered. It was the fifth consecutive day that the mercury moved up into the noxious 90s there. For the first time within the memories of the warmest attaches, coats were removed in the August federal court. Youngsters who opened fire hydrants for curb-side baths kept West Side police on the run.

Some of the high temperatures were Pierre, S. D., 111; Phoenix, Ariz., 109; Chadron, Neb., San Bernardino, Cal., and Huron, S. D., 108; Rapid City, S. Other cities recording 100 or higher included Raleigh, N. C.; Omaha, Neb.; Amarillo, Texas; Jackson, Miss., and Madison, Wis.

Forecasters reported that temperatures generally were above normal throughout the country despite rains that mottled the weather map.

Rivers Pardons 2 Ex-Officers In Bribe Case

Citizenship Is Restored to R. R. Davis and J. A. Bailey.

Two former Atlanta police officers—R. R. Davis and J. A. Bailey—under 36 months' sentence each for bribery were granted full and unconditional pardons by Governor Rivers yesterday while a third city policeman—G. B. Scoggins—was given a parole by the State Prison and Parole Commission, it was disclosed by Fulton county superior court officials.

Notices of the pardons and the parole were received yesterday at the courthouse.

S. Marvin Griffin, the Governor's executive secretary, said the pardons were granted to Davis and Bailey "in order to restore their citizenship." Both men have been on parole since April.

Never Served Day.
Neither of the three officers have ever served a day of their time, although the court of appeals in each instance upheld the Fulton superior court conviction.

Of the two other officers convicted in the law enforcement clean-up drive one—Deputy Sheriff G. H. "Gus" Howard Jr.—has been given a pardon, while the other former policeman, F. J. Aycock is in Fulton tower, where he was surrendered last week by his bondsmen after being arrested on a charge of drunkenness. Before being surrendered, Aycock was at liberty under a $1,000 appeal bond.

Griffin said the pardons were granted "because numbers of reputable and respectable citizens had requested executive clemency."

Several Signatures.
Files of the Davis and Bailey cases disclosed clemency has been recommended by A. L. Belle Isle, president of the Black & White Cab Company; Alderman Frank H. Reynolds, G. H. Howard Sr., father of G. H. "Gus" Howard Jr.; C. Don Miller, Atlanta lawyer; Foster C. Law, merchant; H. Benson Ford, insurance executive; J. Ula Lynn and Martha F. Brown.

Last August, following a session with a Fulton county grand jury, Governor Rivers agreed to notify superior court officials before the granting of any pardons.

Fulton officials said yesterday they had no notice of the Davis or Bailey pardons until after they had been granted.

Investments IN LIFETIME SATISFACTION

We learned from our Mothers and Grandmothers to treasure a graceful Pembroke table or an exquisite tambour desk. Fine furnishings have always been important to us in the South, so much so, that many of the cherished pieces we use today were brought back by young Southerners from European wedding journeys in the early eighteenth century. Now, as in days gone by, beautiful furniture for the home is a gilt-edged investment that pays day-in-day-out dividends in lasting comfort, beauty and satisfaction. Today, as never before, Davison's brings you fine furniture to live with and be proud to hand down—rich mahoganies, lovely fruitwoods, mellow walnut—with a craftsmanship that makes one say, "It's made like furniture used to be made." Choose your fine furniture with confidence at Davison's, as a lifetime investment in beauty and satisfaction, for yourself and your children's children.

Entries Mount As State Race Deadline Nears

1 O'Clock Tomorrow Is Time Limit for Primary Qualification.

By LUKE GREENE.

With 1 o'clock (Atlanta time) tomorrow as the deadline for filing entries for the September 11 state Democratic primary, candidates for state offices began a last-minute rush on the capitol yesterday to get their names in the hat before the grand shuffle starts.

As the rush got under way, the State Prohibition party met in DeCatur and nominated Major J. L. R. Boyd, attorney and secretary of the Standard Federal Savings and Loan Association, as their candidate for Governor, and Governor Rivers voted with the idea of calling a special session of the legislature before the primary.

Mrs. Kathleen Hogan, assistant secretary of the state Democratic executive committee, began preparing for an even greater rush of candidates today and until the stroke of 1 o'clock tomorrow. Many aspirants for office purposely have waited until near the deadline to see just what the political picture would be.

L. P. Glass, of Lavenia, who was named president of the Georgia Prohibition party, said his party would meet again at the DeKalb county courthouse August 14 to complete its platform and consider any other business that might arise.

He said 11 Georgia counties were represented at the meeting, either by delegates or by proxy. John W. Roach, of Evans county, was named presidential elector for the First District, and R. A. Lee, of Franklin Springs, was named secretary of the party. No other officers were selected, Glass said.

Among the candidates getting in on the rush yesterday were Charles H. Garrett, who qualified for solicitor general of the Macon circuit; J. Eugene Cook, of Wrightsville, for solicitor general of the Dublin circuit; J. L. Kent, of Wrightsville, for judge of the superior court of the Dublin circuit; J. R. Rowland, of Wrightsville, for judge of the Dublin circuit, and Judge Clark Edwards Jr., of Elberton, for re-election as judge of the northern circuit.

Included in the delegation were Senator H. C. Kimbrough, Henry Zachary, Chipley banker; Roy Askeew, F. G. Champion, chairman of the board of county commissioners; H. B. Kimbrough, Wiley Wisdom, J. D. Miller, H. A. Middlebrooks, and William Floyd. Incumbent George Hamilton and Pat Avery, Atlanta attorney, already have qualified for the state office.

Former State Auditor Officially Becomes Candidate for Treasurer.

Tom Wisdom, former state auditor, yesterday officially became a candidate for state treasurer by paying his $250 entrance fee.

Wisdom, who previously had announced his candidacy, was accompanied to the capitol by a group of his friends who paid his entrance fee. Wisdom's home is in Chipley.

Included in the delegation were Senator H. C. Kimbrough, Henry Zachary, Chipley banker; Roy Askeew, F. G. Champion, chairman of the board of county commissioners; H. B. Kimbrough, Wiley Wisdom, J. D. Miller, H. A. Middlebrooks, and William Floyd. Incumbent George Hamilton and Pat Avery, Atlanta attorney, already have qualified for the state office.

CADET ASSIGNMENT.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 23. William J. Brake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darwin W. Brake, of Milledgeville, who was sworn in July 1 as a cadet in the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., has been assigned to the First Company, new cadet class, by Brigadier Jay L. Benedict, superintendent.

Paris Today

(Walter Kerr, who was a member of the New York Herald Tribune's Paris bureau when the city was surrendered, has sent this uncensored account of life in German-occupied France by clipper plane from Lisbon, where he arrived July 15.)

ing stock. But all this is proceeding slowly, for the army has military work to do before it has time to move families back home and transport food from the farms to market.

Famine Amid Plenty.

That is why food is scarce in Paris, although the country is loaded down with meat, fresh vegetables, potatoes and dairy products. The stuff is there, but there are not enough men to handle it and not enough trucks to carry it. And so in Paris today, the city of good food in time of peace, you will get no fresh fish and no fresh meat, only frozen meat and a few frozen vegetables. Milk, butter and eggs are luxuries.

This food shortage and the scarcity of money are not entirely the fault of the German occupying force. The banks and the trucks and the refugees went south before it arrived. But the German army is taking its time in setting them right.

As long as the people feel the way they do, overpowered by an army of occupation and bewildered by their own collapse, Frenchmen will show little resistance to German arguments. The old story of "the Jews," the politicians and "the English" is being told all day long.

Nazi Signs Mutilated. And yet there is an undercurrent of resistance. Some weeks ago posters were displayed urging the people to have confidence in their German friends, that they had been betrayed by their leaders and now were being fed by German soldiers. The penalty for defacing one of these signs was death in Paris that has not been ripped and torn.

I could name restaurant proprietors, good men who have fed their clients on credit for weeks, who tell German soldiers that their rations are short so that they do not have to listen to German broadcasts. I know of many Frenchmen who listen constantly to the London radio, although the penalty is severe.

In Paris you can see many other evidences of minor resistance. Every noon a company of German infantry, led by a captain on horseback and preceded by a band, parades down the Champs Elysees and goes to the Crillon and the Ministry of Marine on the Place de la Concorde. The French pay no attention.

Frenchmen stay away from the Arc de Triomphe at the head of the Champs Elysees, for beneath it lies buried their Unknown Soldier. It is not a place for Frenchmen any more. Germans go there with their cameras to take pictures and to look around.

The swastika, the new memorial on the first day of the occupation. It was taken down on the second day just before the arrival of American correspondents from Berlin on a conducted tour.

In those early days German cars and trucks drove into town with French and British helmets tied to the hoods as trophies. That stopped, too. But a Frenchman can go to a newsreel and see pictures of his home being destroyed or the bodies of French soldiers, lying in the dust, ripped to ribbons or burned to a crisp. You can even see pictures of the June 3 raid on Paris and its suburbs, in which military objectives were hit, but in which many civilians lost their lives.

Falling Rifle Kills Boy, 9, at Claxton

CLAXTON, Ga., July 23.—(AP)—Clarence Albert Sikes, 9, was fatally shot this morning when a 22 rifle fell from a shelf in a room adjoining the one he was in.

His brother accidentally knocked the rifle to the floor while reaching for some clothing in a closet. A cartridge in the rifle was discharged and the bullet passed through the wall, striking the boy.

He died this afternoon in a Statesboro hospital, where he was taken for treatment.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. George Hightower, and four brothers and seven sisters.

Mrs. Paul Johnson Dies at Residence

Mrs. Paul G. Johnson, 35, wife of the owner of the Silver Slipper, on the Macon highway, died yesterday at her residence, near Ellenwood, Ga.

Other survivors include her father, J. E. Smith, of Cedartown, and four brothers and three sisters.

Conference of Southern Governors Postponed

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 23. (UP)—A meeting of the Southern Governors' Conference scheduled to be held in Mobile this week end was postponed today indefinitely by Governor Frank H. Dixon, of Alabama.

Dixon said his action was taken because many of the Governors were busy with political campaigns and official business and one or two were sick.

The chief executives had planned to discuss class and live stock freight rates and "trade barriers" at the meeting.

O.J. Franklin Seeks Oconee Judge's Post

Former Eastman Jurist Opposes Eschol Graham, of McRae.

O. J. Franklin, prominent Eastman attorney and former judge of the city court of Eastman, yesterday qualified as a candidate for judge of the superior court of the Oconee circuit. He will oppose Judge Eschol Graham, of McRae, the incumbent.

Judge Franklin was accompanied to the capitol by a delegation of his friends who formed a motorcade from Dodge county, and donated his $250 entrance fee. He drew attention to the fact that he was paying his fee in person, since he was ruled out at the last minute four years ago by the chairman of the state executive committee because he sent his fee by telegraph.

Descendant of an influential Bulloch county family, Judge Franklin moved to Eastman in 1906 to begin his law practice. He was graduated from the University of Georgia with bachelor of arts and bachelor of law degrees.

After serving approximately 16 years as judge of the city court of Eastman, he left the bench in 1936. He has served for several years as attorney and clerk to the Dodge county board of commissioners, was mayor of Eastman and a member of the city board of education. He is a member of the Oconee Bar Association.

England Relents In 'Careless Talk'

LONDON, July 23.—(AP)—The ancient British right of "speaking out of turn" was given back to the nation today by Winston Churchill, who announced in the house of commons that all sentences for "careless talk" would be reviewed.

Pessimists and the less cautious were fined or sentenced—an ex-service man who talked about tank-carrying planes was fined the equivalent of $96, for instance—and people grew irritated.

One member of parliament received 358 letters from constituents, demanding the right to say what they pleased. One of them said: "I have given three sons and most of my income to the cause. I'm damned if I'll stop talking about it."

Wally's First Mate In Divorce Action

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 23. (AP)—The first husband of the Duchess of Windsor, Commander Earl Winfield Spencer, U. S. navy, retired, goes to court tomorrow with his third wife for a hearing of their divorce action.

Mrs. Spencer, the former Norma Reese Johnson, widow of a Detroit manufacturer, declares her income is insufficient for her needs and asks $100 a month from Spencer's pension of $343.33 a month. He contends her $76,000 fortune is adequate for her.

Both charge cruelty and Mrs. Spencer alleges in addition that her husband is habitually intemperate.

the bill for the costs of the army of occupation is presented.

The 500 Americans in town have not been molested nor their property touched, although some have lost their automobiles and more can get gasoline except for relief work. There are also 600 British subjects about, and the Germans have not bothered them. In the Lancaster hotel there is an Englishman who dines every night one table away from a German general.

Americans Not Molested. It is true that things are not as bad in the city as they were a few weeks ago, although no one can tell what the country and its people will face when the offensive against England starts or when Eight states of the Fourth Corps Area enlisted 2,033 men during the six days ending last Saturday, a figure believed to be an all-time record for peacetime recruiting in the United States.

The corps area headquarters was informed by the War Department yesterday that the total was 1,171 ahead of the region's nearest competitor, the Eighth Corps Area. The previous high record, as far as is known, was hung up the previous week, when the Fourth area enlisted 1,439 persons.

The corps area recruiting machine is headed by an office in the Federal building, Atlanta. Under it are four district recruiting officers headed by Army colonels. One, at Charlotte, is in charge of recruiting activities for the two Carolinas; another, at Jacksonville, is in charge of Georgia and Florida; a third, at Montgomery, heads Tennessee and Alabama, while a fourth, at Jackson, controls Mississippi and Louisiana. Each office has under its jurisdiction canvassers in nearly all towns with more than 5,000 persons.

TWO ATLANTANS MADE SECOND LIEUTENANTS
Promotion of two Atlantans to the rank of second lieutenant and their assignment to the 179th Field Artillery—"Atlanta's own"—was announced yesterday by Colonel T. L. Alexander, commander of the regiment.

They are Ralph G. Moye and Thomas E. Watson. Both are well grounded in military experience. Colonel Alexander said, having been engaged previously in the National Guard and officer reserve. Moye and Watson will be assigned to active work with one of the regiment's three batteries and will make the trip to Louisiana in August. Meanwhile, the regiment is getting ready for its three weeks of maneuvers to start August 3. Colonel Alexander said.

CITIZEN TRAINEES FINISH RANGE FIRING
Citizen-soldiers at Fort McPherson finished their firing on the target range yesterday, after compiling some records that are commendable and raising an argument as to whether squirrel shooting or target practice develops the best marksmen.

The men settled among themselves that the new M-1 rifle—the Garand invention that is semi-automatic—is a satisfactory weapon as far as firing comfort and accuracy is concerned, but Captain Fred Fister still is to complete compilation of the records to reveal officially the best shots in camp.

Lieutenant Colonel Clifford R. Jones, camp commander, said he considered many of the scores "pretty good," in view of the fact that many trainees never had fired a rifle before, few of them the heavy .30-caliber used in the army.

The four platoons each spent one day on the range, and during the seven-hour firing periods shot for records with four weapons—the Garand, Springfield and Browning rifles, and the .45-caliber service automatic pistols.

Among the high scorers were J. Russell Grove, Marietta lawyer, and Harry Hampton, Columbia, S. C., newspaperman, who is a great-nephew of the late Confederate General Wade Hampton.

The trainees turn today to combat principles, and to a continuance of close order and extended order drill that has become routine.

GENERAL EMBICK SAYS FOOT SOLDIERS NEEDED

Lieutenant General Stanley D. Embick, Fourth Corps Area commander, believes the foot soldier—on foot—is still the most important and the indispensable bulk of any army, general conceptions concerning mechanization notwithstanding.

The general, who made an inspection visit to the C. M. T. C. at Fort McPherson yesterday, pointed out that even modern, successful armies still are depending upon the "doughboys."

Mechanized divisions are but a small part of any army, he said, and while their development is important, no citizen interested in national defense should lose sight of the fact they cannot operate without support, and that their work is futile unless there are the foot soldiers to follow up, occupy and hold territory seized.

Motorized infantry elements, he pointed out, are helpless until they have their feet on the ground. The general was a spectator during part of the training program, and expressed satisfaction concerning the progress made.

474 RESERVE OFFICERS ARRIVE AT BENNING

FORT BENNING, Ga., July 23. Reserve officers numbering 474 have arrived at Fort Benning to attend the Organized Reserve camp which officially opened Sunday and will close August 3. Officers attending are from states in the army's Fourth Corps Area. The camp is being held in the area that recently was used by the R. O. T. C. camp. Colonel William Scott Wood is in command, and Major William H. Craig is camp adjutant.

Recent changes affecting officer personnel at Fort Benning include: First Lieutenant Francis R. Herald, transferred to Camp Ord, Cal. Major Henry C. Harrison, who was on duty with the R. O. T. C. camp, returned to his home station, and First Lieutenant William P. Yarborough, assigned to duty with the Eight Division at Camp Jackson, S. C. Lieutenant Yarborough was on duty with the 29th Infantry.

The flow of recruits into Fort Benning continues without a break, with applicants for enlistment arriving at all hours. On Monday, 60 applicants were enlisted.

Lieutenant Colonel Lindsay McD. Silvester and Major Lawrence C. Jaynes have gone to Fort Knox, Ky., where they recently were assigned to duty with the First Armored Division. Colonel Silvester will be a regimental commander in that division.

Colonel Silvester arrived at Fort Benning on August 11, 1937, for duty with the Infantry Board until his assignment as chief of the tank section of the Infantry School on January 3, 1939.

Lieutenant Colonel Francis M. Brennan also has gone to Fort Knox for duty with the First Armored Division. He has been executive officer of the Second battalion, 29th Infantry.

Kidneys Must Clean Out Acids
Excess acids, poisons and wastes in your blood are removed chiefly by your kidneys. Getting up Nights, Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Distention, Circles Under Eyes, and feeling worn out, often are caused by non-elastic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Usually in such cases, the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the kidneys flush out excess acids and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee wrapped around each package of Cystex insures to immediate refund of the full cost unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose under this positive money-back guarantee, so get Cystex from your nearest dealer for only 25¢ (10¢).

U.S. Farmers Like Wallace, Survey Shows

81 Per Cent of Dixie
Growers Say He Did
Good Job.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
PRINCETON, N. J., July 23.—A constitutional amendment to prohibit third terms, endorsed by the Republican convention but booted down in the Democratic convention, finds a mixed reception among the voters of the nation. In a poll just completed by the Institute, the Republican rank and file are strongly in favor of an anti-third-term amendment, while the Democrats are even more strongly against it. The Democratic opposition is sufficiently great to tip the scales, so that the total vote for the nation is against the amendment by approximately six to four.

The study is the latest of three surveys made on the issue in recent years. The trend of sentiment favorable to the anti-third-term amendment has been progressively downward as the 1940 campaign approached.

"Would you favor an amendment to the constitution to prevent any President of the United States from serving a third term?"

	Favor	Oppose
September, 1938	48%	52%
November, 1939	42	58
Today	41	59

Among Republicans, the vote is 69 per cent in favor of the amendment, 31 per cent opposed, while among Democrats it is 14 per cent for the amendment, 86 per cent opposed.

In the latest pre-convention survey, begun on June 25 and completed shortly after July 1, Democrats expressing a choice on candidates voted as follows when asked whom they favored for the presidency:

SENTIMENT FOR AN ANTI-THIRD-TERM AMENDMENT

Pre-Convention Popularity of Democratic Candidates
Roosevelt	82%
Hull	4
Garner	1
Farley	1
Wheeler	1
McNutt	1

The situation in the Republican party, according to an Institute survey completed the day of Willkie's nomination, was as follows:

Pre-Convention Popularity of Republican Candidates
Willkie	44%
Dewey	29
Taft	13
All Others	14

The morning after Roosevelt's nomination, the American Institute launched a nation-wide survey on the popular strength of the two rival candidates for President. The first report, showing how the 48 states line up at the start of the campaign, will be published some time during the first week in August. It will appear exclusively in The Constitution.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Dr. J. C. Wilkinson was telling a group of us a story the other night as we rode along home from Nashville which vividly points out a definite case of religious measurement—not always an easy thing to do.

He said that some years ago Dr. Charles W. Gilkey was speaking at the University of Georgia, and in turn the course of his address, he said:

"Look at the young men in any given town who one day meet on the sidewalk. One of them is on his way to church. He invites his friend to join him. The friend declines, stating that he will go on to his office and open his mail. An hour later they meet, and walk along together to their homes. You cannot discover any difference in these two young men on that particular Sunday morning as they walk along.

"But look at those two men 20 years later, and anybody can see the difference."

That is one of the finest illustrations I have ever heard of what is happening in the lives of men and women in every community throughout the land. I think the principle set forth in this illustration will be found an accurate measurement for the great majority of the lives about us.

Church attendance, Bible study, daily devotions, Scriptural stewardship of money, time, influence—these are the equations that ultimately determine character and destiny.

One of the tragic tendencies of our day and generation is the drift of prominent young business and professional men toward Paganism—utter disregard of church attendance and other religious observance. The effect of such Paganism may not be so noticeable at the moment. They are not conscious, perhaps, of what is happening to them. They are coasting, but if they would only stop for a moment and think on their ways they would know that they are going down hill. They are relying upon the reserve which they inherited from their parents and from devout neighbors. Such reserve is soon exhausted.

Some of these clever young men defend themselves on the ground that the preachers are not up to date, that the music is not as good as they heard at the opera or over the radio, that they are forced to hold business conferences on Sunday in order to direct their "big" business, that Dad was a good man but he didn't know about "modern" stream-lined life, etc., etc.

Twenty years from now, if they pursue their course, everybody will look upon these men, pitying them in their loss of the values that endure.

Worth County Coroner Kills Self, Sheriff Says

SYLVESTER, Ga., July 23.—(AP) Ernest L. Spurlin, Worth county coroner and prominent local undertaker, committed suicide at his home here today, according to Sheriff J. N. Sumner. Spurlin shot himself in the forehead with a shotgun, the sheriff said.

Son of the late T. A. Spurlin, who established an undertaking establishment here in 1900, Spurlin had conducted the business since his father's death.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Lemon Juice Recipe for Rheumatic Pain

If you suffer from rheumatic or neuritic pain, try this simple, inexpensive, home recipe. Get a package of Bu-Ex Compound, mix it with a quart of water, add the juice of 4 lemons. Often within 48 hours—sometimes overnight—splendid relief is obtained. If the pain does not quickly leave you, Bu-Ex will cost you nothing to try as it is sold under an absolute money-back guarantee. Bu-Ex is for sale and recommended by Jacobs Pharmacy Stores and drug stores across the South.

Toccoa Hears All Candidates For Governor

Two Blast Administration;
Two Echo Democratic Convention.

TOCCOA, Ga., July 23.—(AP)—Two of Georgia's gubernatorial candidates castigated present and past state administrations today and the other two voiced echoes of the Democratic national convention.

All four spoke from the same platform at a political roundup. Abit Nix asserted the "political egotism" of Eugene Talmadge would "turn into despotism at the first opportunity."

He said the Talmadge reign from 1933-37 "showed that he does not think of free education as a necessity in the modern world."

Talmadge singled out for criticism the wildlife agency of the present administration, charging "it has allowed conservation to stop and the fine fish hatcheries to go to ruin."

The former governor said coastal fisheries particularly "need proper protection and conservation to avoid total extinction."

Candidate Columbus Roberts declared that since the Chicago convention "it has become increasingly clear that enemies of democracy in Georgia will attempt to use the September primary to lay the foundation for a fight to carry the state for the Republican ticket next November."

But Georgia, he added, "won't be deceived by the puppets of privilege disguised as friends of liberal democracy."

Also glancing back at the convention, Hugh Howell predicted "Roosevelt as President, Wallace as Vice President and the Democratic party are going to sweep this country in the November election."

Describing himself as a "life-long Democrat," Howell said "the host of militant Democrats in this state are standing squarely behind Roosevelt, Wallace and our country."

PREFER INCOME

A "Good Housekeeping Magazine" survey shows that 85% of the women interviewed would rather have proceeds of life insurance left to them on an income basis than in a lump sum.

Main reasons for their choice were: To prevent poor investments, foolish spending and unwise handling of large amounts of money by women with no business ability. We are specialists in income insurance.

HEATED THIS HOME WITH GAS FLOOR FURNACES

In hundreds of other Atlanta homes, too, this newest method of home heating automatically with Natural Gas gave new meaning to the word "comfort."

Designed specifically for the small home which is not constructed for a basement type heating plant, the gas floor furnace efficiently and economically bridges the gap between radiant heaters and central heating systems.

Ask about the new zone heating plan with gas floor furnaces.

The Gas Floor Furnace is shown in the illustration. It is simply a compact, efficient miniature warm air furnace, completely enclosed. The top, set flush with the floor, is the familiar warm air register. Installed, nothing is visible but the register. It may be operated by thermostat or manually.

No down payment and no monthly payments until your September gas bill. We or your FURNACE DEALER will gladly give you further information.

Board of directors of Atlanta Boardwill Industries will meet at 11 o'clock this afternoon in Paxon's tea room.

Ed L. Bridges, capitol reporter for the Associated Press, was back to work yesterday after a two weeks' absence because of a tonsil operation.

Bank clearings yesterday were $1,000,000, a $2,500,000 gain over same day of 1939.

Atlanta Truth Center will meet at 11 o'clock this morning on the mezzanine floor of the Biltmore Hotel.

The Georgia Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Atlanta chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants held a joint meeting last night.

Board of directors of the National Association of Cost Accountants will meet at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, in the council room at Davidson-Paxon Company.

REUNION OF THE PATRICK family will be held Sunday at the home of C. B. Patrick, 188 Berean avenue, S. E.

Descendants of J. H. Gazaway and W. P. Haynes, of Decatur, held their annual reunion at Grant Park Sunday.

Civil service examinations shortly will be held for the positions of bookbinder, explosives engineer, radio monitoring officer and radio operator, civil service officials here said yesterday. Salaries for the various posts range from $1,620 to $5,600 yearly.

Those interested may obtain further information from the civil service office in the new Post Office building.

Sales of American flags have increased 50 per cent in recent months, flag dealers here reported yesterday. A few French and British flags also have been sold, but Nazi swastikas aren't moving so fast, the dealers declared.

R. M. McDuffie, of East Point, deputy clerk in Fulton superior court, has been appointed district deputy grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks for the western district of Georgia.

State Highway Engineer W. R. Neel returned to his desk yesterday after a brief illness.

Visitors to the Governor's office yesterday included Representative G. O. Kaigler, of Georgetown; Render Terrell, of LaGrange; Senator J. C. Pruitt, of Dahlonega; former State Senator Guy Jackson, of Cochran; a delegation of Eastman citizens, headed by Representative Lamar Wiggins, and Sheriff J. D. Wright, of Baxley.

Ben T. Huie, Georgia commissioner of labor, yesterday addressed the Georgia Rural Letter Carriers' Association. He emphasized the part the mail carriers played in the upbuilding of the state. Huie has spoken at several of the association's meetings.

Perry Mobley, 13-year-old son of an Albany rural mail carrier, Jere E. Mobley, was Governor for a day yesterday. He was sitting up proudly in the Governor's chair when the chief executive walked in yesterday morning. The youngster received a special citation, presented to him by Governor Rivers for his part in running the state.

ARMY OFFICER KILLED. HAMPTON, N. H., July 23.—(UP)—A United States army officer was killed instantly today when his plane, belonging to the eighth pursuit group at Langley Field, Va., hit some high tension wires, scraped the roof of a house and buried itself in a marsh near Little Bear's Head.

A total of $305.74 will be added to the cost of construction of a new prison building at the city jail, H. H. Gibson, superintendent, asked permission to divert that amount from the sale of products to the building fund.

Grady hospital's board of trustees plans a vigorous campaign in behalf of the September 4 $4,000,000 bond issue, of which $2,000,000 will be used for improvements at Grady and Battle Hill sanatorium. City Clerk Joe Richardson will provide the trustees, free of charge, a registration list which will be used in a mail campaign.

Fourteen-day vacations with pay will be granted truck drivers and watchmen of the city sanitary department as a result of city council's action. More than 100 men are affected.

Grady hospital will expend $250 on new X-ray equipment under a resolution passed by city council which now awaits the approval of Mayor Hartsfield.

Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, yesterday joined the ranks of "working" department heads. His secretary, Francis Newman, was out of the city on a vacation.

Routine matters were considered yesterday at the regular meeting of the city personnel board. The chairman, J. A. (Gus) Harper, was out of the city, but James P. Allen and Aubrey Milam, other members, were present.

John Harrison, veteran reporter for the Fulton Daily Report, was confined yesterday to Georgia Baptist hospital. He was taken ill Monday night.

Five convictions in recorder's court of failing to stop at stop signs were appealed to the Fulton superior court yesterday by George Muckle through his attorney. He appealed four convictions last week, making a total of nine appeals from cases in the traffic court since June 25.

Theater Heads Oppose Latest Booking Plan

Regional Owners Object To Buying Films Five at Time.

By LEE ROGERS.

Motion Picture Editor.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 23. Southeastern theater owners began a fight here today to protect their pocketbooks and those of their patrons.

The drive also seeks to retain the current power of a theater owner in buying just those films his patrons wish to see.

First step was the adoption of a resolution opposing a plan now reported agreed upon by government officials and distributors, offering films for sale in blocks of five without granting privilege of rejection of any in the group regardless of morals or racial objections.

The resolution was presented by Nat Williams, of Thomasville, and adopted unanimously by the convention of the Southeastern Theater Owners' Association. The association contends adoption of the sale plan will cause theatergoers to pay more for good pictures and force them to see four inferior films in order to see one good one.

M. C. Moore, of Jacksonville, was re-elected president at the closing session, and Nat Williams was named vice president. New directors include Mrs. Louis Bach, R. B. Wilby and Arthur Lucas, of Atlanta; J. H. Thompson, of Hawkinsville; J. C. H. Wink, of Dalton; W. M. Karrh, of Savannah; and Fred Weiss, of Savannah.

at the CITY HALL

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday had on his desk several hundred papers passed at council's regular session July 15 and at the adjourned meeting last Monday. He had not yet begun action on them, but said he expects to begin his studies probably today.

George Hauck, of the construction department, was made a foreman by city council when $150 was provided to supplement his salary as a truck driver for the remainder of the year. Approval by Mayor Hartsfield is the only other hurdle to be taken by Hauck in his promotion.

A total of $305.74 will be added to the cost of construction of a new prison building at the city jail, H. H. Gibson, superintendent, asked permission to divert that amount from the sale of products to the building fund.

Grady hospital's board of trustees plans a vigorous campaign in behalf of the September 4 $4,000,000 bond issue, of which $2,000,000 will be used for improvements at Grady and Battle Hill sanatorium. City Clerk Joe Richardson will provide the trustees, free of charge, a registration list which will be used in a mail campaign.

Fourteen-day vacations with pay will be granted truck drivers and watchmen of the city sanitary department as a result of city council's action. More than 100 men are affected.

Grady hospital will expend $250 on new X-ray equipment under a resolution passed by city council which now awaits the approval of Mayor Hartsfield.

Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, yesterday joined the ranks of "working" department heads. His secretary, Francis Newman, was out of the city on a vacation.

Routine matters were considered yesterday at the regular meeting of the city personnel board. The chairman, J. A. (Gus) Harper, was out of the city, but James P. Allen and Aubrey Milam, other members, were present.

John Harrison, veteran reporter for the Fulton Daily Report, was confined yesterday to Georgia Baptist hospital. He was taken ill Monday night.

Five convictions in recorder's court of failing to stop at stop signs were appealed to the Fulton superior court yesterday by George Muckle through his attorney. He appealed four convictions last week, making a total of nine appeals from cases in the traffic court since June 25.

Mother Sees Son Enlist, Then Volunteers Herself

PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—(AP) Mrs. Bessie Solomon accompanied her 18-year-old son to an army recruiting station today, watched him enlist, then told the commanding officer:

"I should like to sign up, too—as an ambulance driver or to serve in any other unit that I could."

Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Schoenfeld informed her that the army, for the present at least, couldn't accept women as fighters.

"You are a fine American mother. We shall make a record of this case. The time may come when we can avail ourselves of such patriotism."

STRICKLAND, Mr.

Dodge Relates Threat, Beating In Labor Probe

Ex-Minister Testifies in Fitzgerald Mills NLRB Case.

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 23.—(P)—The Rev. Witherspoon Dodge, former Atlanta minister, engaged in labor union organization, testified today he was seized on a Fitzgerald hotel porch last August 8, whisked out of town and given a severe beating.

His testimony was given in a district federal court hearing on charges that the Fitzgerald cotton mills violated the Wagner labor relations act.

An organizer for the Textile Workers of America for the past several years, the witness said a dozen men seized him while he talked with a cotton mill official.

His life was threatened and after the beating he was left in the woods, the minister added.

Alton Lawrence, TWOC representative and a principal government witness, testified he was struck by a mill employee, Glenn Melton, when efforts were being made to unionize the mills in 1938.

He denied calling mill workers "yellow and a coward" for signing union resignation slips.

FBI Chief Warns Of 'Column' Threat

NEW YORK, July 23.—(P)—FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover roundly condemned Communists and Bundsmen today, and declared that the nation was facing a new enemy "that is far more crafty, scheming and despicable than the kidnaper, the highwayman or the burglar."

"The forces that threaten America today," he told 400 police chiefs attending a New York state convention, "are motivated by avarice, lust and an insatiable thirst for power. They would destroy every vestige of our traditions, institutions and sacred heritages. They have but one principle—that the ends justify the means."

He said the problem of coping with the foreign agent, the saboteur and the subverter was one of national ramifications, and one that "must be met by the best of trained intelligence and efforts that we in law enforcement can muster."

Chappell Calls 197 To Testify At Cobb Trial

Persons High in Public Life Are Listed as Witnesses.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., July 23.—Among 197 witnesses subpoenaed by the defense for the murder trial of Bill Chappell, 24-year-old son of Carroll County Commissioner W. Hamp Chappell, and three others, here next week, will be prominent merchants and professional men of Carroll county, city and county officials at Carrollton, educators and farmers.

Subpoenas had been written by Clerk of Court John T. LeCroy today and will be issued within the next few days.

Listed by the defense will be nearly 150 character witnesses, including Mayor Stewart Martin, of Carrollton; Tom Robertson, Carroll county clerk; Matt Griffin, Carroll ordinary; J. H. Burson, tax collector; W. R. Robinson, judge of Carroll county court; Ollie Spence, postmaster, and a brother of Warden Charley Spence, who will appear as material witness for the state.

Heard Officials.

The defense has summoned two officials of Heard county, Sheriff Charlie Bledsoe and County Commissioner Philip Almon, who, it was presumed here, would be called as character witnesses.

Others prominent in Carrollton's civic and government life summoned to appear here are Earl Staples, attorney; Robert Tinsinger, Carroll county court solicitor; J. J. Reese, former judge of city court; I. S. Ingram, president of West Georgia College; Mrs. H. M. Tyus, sister of former Governor Eugene Talmadge; Joe McGiboney, superintendent of the Carroll county schools; Nell Pentecost, director of the Carroll county welfare department; Dr. C. C. Fitts, Dr. H. A. Barker, Dr. Jeff Brock, Dr. W. A. Aderholt, Dr. W. B. Hansard, the Rev. W. C. Hammond and the Rev. Joe Loyton.

Others noted in the list are Mrs. J. Spiller, of Lithia Springs; Sam Campbell, former Carroll county convict guard; Hamp Riggs, who was one of six witnesses listed in the indictments, and Mrs. Alvin Riggs, wife of one of the accused.

Chappells Summoned.

Several members of the Chappell family, notably Mrs. Carrie Chappell, mother of one of the accused, will be among those answering defense counsel summons. Other members of the Chappell family subpoenaed are Mrs. R. J. Chappell, Clay Chappell and Mrs. Lula Pullins.

Young Chappell and three others, Jason Clark, Lewis Turner, former convicts at Carrollton, and John Holmback, aged inmate at Carroll county almshouse, were indicted in two general murder bills last week by the Cobb county grand jury for the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ed Peek, of Atlanta, two years ago last June 21.

Court officials Monday disclosed that 35 subpoenas had been charged off to the state to be used as state subpoenas for this trial.

Subpoenas Listed.

The complete list of the defense subpoenas follows:

Woodrow Taylor, Pete Rabbit Jones, Mrs. Jones, Tobe Cook, Allen Swann, J. O. Smith, Joe Loyton, Amy Johnson, wife, Mrs. R. J. Spiller, R. J. Spiller, Charlie Spence, Clayborn Smith, Cecil Ottwell, Frank Baker, Nath. Spence, Parker Moore, Elam Blackwelder, Lee Jackson.

How to Get Rid of ANTS Here's what to do: First, keep kitchen floors, pantry shelves, cupboards, etc., free from food particles, sugar, etc. Second, sprinkle Bee Brand Insect Powder in corners and along the back edge of shelves, back of and under the sink, refrigerator and stove. Blow it into cracks and crevices, back of and under wall boards. Build powder barriers between sash and places where they meet. Repeat these treatments regularly. Bee Brand kills ants, roaches and other crawling insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use. Insist on the genuine Bee Brand Insect Powder—the red and yellow can. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back.

TOCCOA CHAMP — Jimmy Andrews pauses for a moment's rest following his victory over 22 other youths of that mountain city yesterday afternoon. Jimmy will come to Atlanta Saturday to compete in the North Georgia Championship race on the Northside drive course.

8,000 in Toccoa See Boy Win Soap Box Race

Jimmy Andrews Leads Field of 22 Eager Entrants.

By CAROLYN McKENZIE.

TOCCOA, Ga., July 23.—Jimmy Andrews, 13-year-old Toccoa boy, sped down a hill this afternoon to win this city's first Soap Box Derby race over 22 entrants.

Racing before a crowd of 8,000 persons, the drivers of these boy-built coaster cars thrilled many spectators who spent their morning listening to political addresses by all of Georgia's gubernatorial candidates, Abit Nix, Eugene Talmadge, Hugh Howell and Columbus Roberts.

Runner-up in this race, which was cosponsored by the Toccoa Record and the Toccoa Chevrolet Company, was Robert Carlton, whose speedy car carried him through as victor of three heats. Wilmer Shirley came third. Andrews will go to Atlanta Saturday to compete in the north Georgia championship race, which is sponsored by The Constitution in conjunction with the Chevrolet Motor Company.

SOAP BOX RACE AT CONYERS TODAY

Conyers will run her fourth annual Soap Box Derby zone race today, when the 20 registered entrants speed down the course in this race, cosponsored by the Conyers Times and the Conyers Motor Company, in conjunction with the American Legion.

For four years a successful event in Rockdale county, the Derby has come to be considered one of the biggest days in the year in that town.

"This place has cleaned up and its operation now is O.K."

This little fragment, torn at random from one of our investigators' daily reports, may be just a scrap of paper—but to the brewing industry it's mighty important, as it should be to the citizens of Georgia.

It simply means that the program of the Brewers and Beer Distributors Committee of Georgia is accomplishing its objective—"cleaning up or closing up" those few retail beer outlets that operate in a manner inimical to public welfare and the future of an important Georgia industry.

Sixty-five retail outlets, out of 157 warned by our Committee, have eliminated the illegal and unwholesome conditions that made them community nuisances. We're for these and other law-abiding retailers one hundred per cent.

Thirty-three retailers did not see fit to regard our "clean up or close up" program seriously. Their licenses have been revoked.

Legally Dead Man, 61, Returns To Claim Estate

ST. LOUIS, July 23.—(P)—Andrew Francy, 61, who was declared legally dead last October, has returned to St. Louis to claim part of a $32,000 estate, his brother, Thomas Francy, disclosed today.

Andrew's whereabouts had been unknown to his family for 42 years. He arrived a few days ago from Long Beach, Cal.

Andrew was declared legally dead by Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold on information furnished by relatives that all efforts to find him had proven futile. His share of the estate, about $7,773, had been placed in the care of an administrator.

State Veterinarian Warns Farmers

Dr. J. M. Sutton, state veterinarian, yesterday warned Georgia farmers against over-working of mules and horses in the extreme heat.

He said reports coming to his office indicated a number of losses of horses and mules through heat strokes.

He urged frequent watering of animals, rest periods of from 15 to 30 minutes during the morning and afternoon, plenty of salt and generous feedings of good clean hay. He also said care should be exercised in using concentrated feeds during extremely hot weather.

Sabotage Effort Against War Relief Reported

F. D. R. Denies Supplies
Are Falling Into Hands of Axis.

HYDE PARK, July 23.—(AP)—Reports from over the country of some form of "Fifth Column" effort to sabotage the raising of funds for the suffering people of Europe are reaching the Red Cross, President Roosevelt said today.

The reports are quite vague, Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference, but indicate that a rumor had been started that Red Cross relief supplies are falling into German and Italian military hands.

At the request of Norman Davis, Red Cross chairman, he said he was glad to say the reports were completely and utterly unfounded and that supplies were being distributed actually and physically to people in need.

Asked whether he had heard that Denmark was slaughtering a large amount of its livestock, Mr. Roosevelt replied that unofficial and unverified reports had reached him two or three weeks ago that as much as 50 per cent of Denmark's cattle, hogs and poultry were being killed and the carcasses taken to Germany.

If the reports from Denmark are true, the President said, it naturally would be a pretty serious thing for the Danish people.

County System and Red Tape Held Two Chief State Defects

Fact Finders' Report Says Georgia Lacks Central Authority and Recommends 30 Instead of 159 Counties.

The two chief defects in Georgia's political system are its multiplicity of local units of government, principally counties, and its lack of central authority.

This is a summary of the state's problems, contained in a report prepared by the Citizens' Fact-Finding Movement of Georgia in which every aspect of its governmental system is considered.

"If some beneficent power should erase all county lines and obliterate all county sites, it would be a comparatively easy task to reform the political system so as to make it far more efficient and far less expensive," declares the study, made public yesterday. "Instead of 159 counties, Georgia might be divided into some 30 counties. In making such a division of the territory, consideration should be given not only to natural boundaries, but to economic conditions and to the convenience of citizens. The county site, as far as possible, should be approximately in the center of the county, and equally accessible from every part of it."

Advantages Named.
The fact-finding movement is composed of a group of state-wide organizations with a membership of 250,000 persons. The political analysis was made by a committee headed by Judge Orville Park, of Macon.

It is pointed out that the proposal would eliminate about four-fifths of the state's courthouses and jails; would reduce greatly the personnel of 2,500 engaged in county occupations, and would have beneficial effect on administration of justice, the character of legislation, the efficiency of public services, and end much overlapping of city and county governments.

The history of the present county system is described: "When the counties were first laid off, the idea was to make them small enough that any citizen riding a horse or driving a horse-drawn vehicle could go to the county site, attend to his business, and get back to his home by nightfall."

It is suggested that consolidation could be effected by the favorable votes of a majority of those participating in an election held in the counties concerned at the request of one-fifth of the registered voters. Pointing to one specific advantage, the document inquires:

"Why should not schools, particularly high schools, be located for the convenience of the people regardless of county lines? Why should pupils from the county have to pass by the city high school and go miles farther to reach the county high school, and vice versa?"

Legislative Set-up.

Concerning the legislative set-up of Georgia, the report asserts:

"(1) Representation bears no relationship whatever to population.

"(2) The house of representatives is so large as to be unwieldy.

"(3) The entire personnel of the senate under the prevailing rotation system changes at each session, and the composition of the senatorial districts is such that, practically, the senate represents the entire state."

It is declared unequivocally that the present distribution of representation "permits a very small minority of the people to elect a very large majority of both houses, thus partially disfranchising most of the citizens of the state."

In suggesting changes for the executive department, the report quotes Alexander Hamilton: "A feeble executive implies a feeble execution of the government. A feeble execution is but another phrase for a bad execution, and a government ill executed, whatever may be the theory, must be in practice a bad government."

Of the judiciary the investigators declare:

"Perhaps no department needs a complete revision so much as the judicial department. There are entirely too many courts, and the procedure in these courts is at least 50 years behind the times. There are more than 300 courts of all grades, and under the present system no one knows, except in the most casual way, anything about the business done in these courts. Each judge is left to work out his own salvation without supervision or aid."

Sacrifice Principles.

Georgia's efforts to disfranchise Negroes have been successful, the report declares, but "at the sacrifice of democratic principles."

Tax requirements for voting are especially condemned. Jay Franklin, author of the column, "We, the People," is quoted: "The southern poll tax is not a device to keep Negroes from voting, it is a device to prevent the poorer white people from voting."

The report also points out that the proportion of voters in states having this requirement runs from 14 per cent in South Carolina to 33 1/2 per cent in Tennessee, while in non-poll tax states the proportion voting ranges from 64 per cent in Kentucky to 92 per cent in West Virginia. Only 20 per cent vote in Georgia, a poll tax state.

Fetish of Democracy.

"We have made a sort of fetish of democracy," the study believes, "but have departed very far from its principles. The present system would not be tolerable of public services, and end much overlapping of city and county governments."

Neutrals Hint Blitzkrieg on England Soon

Germans Concentrating
in Lowlands, Warning
Reports Say.

By The Associated Press.
Nazi Germany served notice on Great Britain last night that "weapons will speak" and neutral reports from Belgium and Holland indicated Adolf Hitler's promised blitzkrieg may come soon.

Only Adolf Hitler and his closest aides know when Germany will attempt the invasion of Britain, but there were these straws in the martial wind:

1. Definite and final rejection by the British of Hitler's "last chance" peace appeal voiced in his speech to the German Reichstag last Friday. Hitler had indicated he would await Britain's answer before losing his military might.

2. Word from neutral sources of great increased activities in Dutch and Belgian dockyards and railways in the last few days, with Germany apparently concentrating military supplies in the Lowlands, the jumping-off place for an invasion of Britain.

3. More intense bombing activities by both Germany and Britain, with the Nazis again raiding Scotland and England and the Royal Air Force attacking aerial and oil centers in Germany.

The British people learned they must pay a tremendous price for the war upon "Hitlerism." They were told by Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, that they must pay a 42 1/2 per cent standard income tax plus a sales tax, which will cost them one-third of the wholesale value of such "luxuries" as furniture and lipstick.

The British budget for the current fiscal year, which ends next March 31, totals 2,467,000,000 pounds ($13,868,000,000). Of this 239,000,000 pounds ($956,000,000) will be raised by new taxes.

The war now is costing the British $228,000,000 weekly. From Berlin and the Balkans came word that Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary would lay their complex problems before the German foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, on Friday at Salzburg, Germany.

German sources in Bucharest said Rumania would be asked to give Hungary a strip of Transylvania in return for a guarantee by Germany of Germany's peaceful attitude.

Rumania quickly turned toward Germany when Russia took Bessarabia and northern Bucovina. Russia yesterday ordered all males between 19 and 50 not previously registered for military service to do so in the first two weeks of September. Whether Germany's deep interest in Balkan affairs had any bearing on that move was not indicated in Moscow dispatches.

In the Far East, Japan's new premier, Prince Fumimaro Kono, declared Japan would take a guiding role in establishing a "new world order."

WASHINGTON, July 23.—(AP)—The United States, roundly criticizing Soviet Russia for "annihilating" the political independence of three Baltic republics, made known today it would not recognize their absorption into the Soviet system.

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state in the absence of Secretary Hull, spoke out at a press conference against "the devious processes" by which he said Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania were to be deprived of their freedom by "one of their more powerful neighbors."

The acting secretary did not mention Russia by name, but he left no doubt in anyone's mind as to his meaning. Newly elected parliaments in the Baltic republics had voted in recent days, following Red army occupation of their countries and an intensive propaganda campaign, to seek union with the Soviet.

The people of the United States are opposed to predatory activities no matter whether they are carried on by the use of force or by the threat of force," Welles declared. "They are likewise opposed to any form of intervention on the part of one state, however powerful, in the domestic concerns of any other sovereign states, however weak."

In response to a question at his press conference, Welles also touched upon Spain's recent action in severing diplomatic relations with Chile. Permitting reporters to quote him directly, a rare procedure usually followed only when special emphasis is desired, the secretary declared:

"I think that the constitutional, democratic and elected government of Chile, with which this government maintains the closest and most friendly relations, is amply capable of making such public statements in regard to this incident as may be necessary."

"I think, however, that I can add that any attempt on the part of any foreign government to interfere by direction or by indirect means in the domestic concerns of any American republic will be unanimously resented by all of the American peoples."

PARIS REUNION.
POWDER SPRINGS, Ga., July 23.—The Paris reunion will be held Sunday at the Vernon Community house near Hiram.

It was believed, however, that the numerical strength of the Nazi air force still is greater than at the start of fighting—due to mass production methods.

British sources pointed out that proportionately the Royal Air Force has gathered strength more rapidly, thanks to more than doubled home production and increased American deliveries.

There was no estimate of the total RAF losses during the war. Reuters, British news agency, said that while at least 133 Nazi raiders were brought down in the last five weeks of raids over England, the RAF lost 91 planes in raiding far-flung German objectives.

COACH ENTERS POLITICS. Coach Bill White, who directed the destinies of the University of Georgia baseball team for 13 years, yesterday qualified for election as a member of the State Prison and Parole Board.

At Greeley, Col., he told another station knower the United States would go "down the same road as the totalitarian states" if the people follow political "machines."

He mentioned specifically "the Kelly-Nash machine and the remnants of the Pendergast machine and the Guffeys."

At the Frontier Park Rodeo arena, Wilkie, commenting on President Roosevelt's press conference remarks this afternoon on Democrats who have pledged support to him, told reporters:

"The President is going to make remarks about a lot of Democrats before this campaign is over. This shows that the President is thinking of something besides the affairs of state."

At Brighton, Wilkie said: "I know it is a series of circumstances that caused me to be nominated for President. 'I know there are thousands of men qualified for my position, public or private. 'In this country there is no such thing as the indispensable man.'"

DEMOCRATS STUDY SOUTHERN CAMPAIGN. WASHINGTON, July 23.—(UP)—Democratic leaders tonight contemplated the prospect of waging an active campaign in the "solid south" for the first time in years to combat the activities of "Willkie-for-President" clubs being formed in large numbers by party conservatives and anti-third terms.

No action in this direction is expected to be taken until New Dealers have had time to gauge the amount of hostility in the 10 southern states that make up the traditionally "solid" Democratic bloc toward the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket. Informed experts say there is considerable grumbling about it now, but that a better feeling may develop before the November elections.

House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican national committee, said the Republicans will charge the Democratic bastions in the south, and he is confident that some will fall. He and other G. O. P. leaders point out that Herbert Clark Hoover carried four states of the "solid" bloc in 1928 but didn't need them to whip Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York.

'Thar's Gold' For Workers, Pioneer Says

Ebb Chewning Started Off Without Dime; Gives Success Tips.

There are still some pioneers around. One anyway. At 69 he is firm in his conviction that opportunity exists for the enterprising and industrious individual. As he not too originally puts it: "For thar's gold in them hills. Only dig it out."

Ebb A. Chewning, lean, alert, kindly, tells his life story without ostentation but with just pride.

It is an American story, with the familiar, yet never old, theme of hard work and application. He lives prosperously today in the place where he started out 41 years ago, four miles out from Decatur on the Lawrenceville road, but it wasn't always like that.

Farm Rent Free. "I moved here from Atlanta about the year 1899, without a dime," he says. "I farm on 24 acres so poor the owner let me have it rent free for the first year. Next year I had to pay him $40, and the next year he wanted $60. I refused to pay it for I had built the place up so much he could then rent it to most anybody."

"So then he wanted to sell it to me, and I bought it for $10 an acre. Since, I have paid as high as $250 an acre."

"Now, the 24 acres had no house, so I rented a three-room house across the road for $25 a year. We lived in two rooms and I started my first store here in the other room. In order to get trade with such small stock I conceived the barter idea. I got out 'dodgers' and advertised I would exchange goods for anything they might have such as chickens, eggs, scrap iron, rags, bottles, bones, hides, skins, rabbits and what-have-you."

Wife Tended Store. "It was a success from the start. I have had the store since, but now it is rented to another party. I have always farmed."

"My wife tended the store while I worked the farm. We sure had a hard time getting a start without capital, but 18 hours' work a day, good health and pretty good luck helped us make a go of it."

"All the time we were putting in something new. The third year I built a five-room house, which now has eight rooms."

He believes, and asserts, he was the first settler between Decatur and Tucker, in a region which now embraces a part of fashionable Druid Hills and the attractive towns of Chamblee, Doraville and Dunwoody, to accomplish these things—

Apply paint, storm sheeting and plaster to his house and equip it with screened doors and windows.

Install a telephone, in fact, two telephones in the days when there were competing services.

The First Piano. Buy a graphophone. Install acetylene and later electric lights, a water system and modern equipment.

Engage in business as a storekeeper, real estate dealer, operator of a filling station with electric pumps, and market gardener.

He believes he bought the first piano and the first automobile thereabout.

"Now I have my eighth car," he relates. "I wore out the others and never had an accident."

Not only was his steam canner the first in that section but he is certain he was the world-originator of sweet potato canning, as well as preserving fresh apple cider in cans.

"I was the first to take a daily newspaper by rural free delivery," he adds. "Incidentally, it was The Constitution."

Looking back up on his accomplishments, this product of the days of individualism observes: "This is no more than any strong, determined young man can do today. There is no better place to start than right here in good old Georgia."

BATHING SUITS WANTED. ALBANY, Ga., July 23.—(AP)—With the nation in the grip of a heat wave, Mrs. Permella Dunn, WPA district recreation supervisor, has sent out an appeal for children's bathing suits. Sizes wanted are from 9 to 15.

OPPORTUNITY LIVES. Georgia offers anyone with industry and application a chance for success. So believes Ebb A. Chewning, 69, who cites his record as a pioneer between Decatur and Tucker as proof.

People Warned Of World Peril By Witnesses

Convention Will Open Here, Seeking To Stave Off Disaster.

Advised as heralding, and possibly staving off, the approaching world disaster, a theocratic convention of Jehovah's Witnesses will open simultaneously in 32 cities today, one of them Atlanta.

Pre-convention publicity explains it thusly: "World events are fast approaching the great and final climax foretold in the prophecies of the Bible and therefore it behooves everyone who wishes to live beyond the present trouble to learn all possible about the prophecies and shape one's life accordingly. In harmony with this thought, programs have been arranged so as to be instructive to all people of good will, and all such are invited to attend these sessions."

The Atlanta convention will be held at the municipal auditorium. Like the 31 others, it will run Wednesday through Sunday, and each afternoon will be tied in by direct wire with the "key" convention in Detroit to hear Judge Joseph F. Rutherford speak.

The morning and night sessions, according to Dr. J. A. Edwards, of Atlanta, will be given over to lectures and discussions of the prophecies. Approximately 2,000 persons are expected to attend the Atlanta meeting.

Judge Rutherford has described the witnesses as "not a sect, not a religious organization. They are in the class of faithful men mentioned in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews: whose sole purposes is to inform the people of God's purpose to establish a righteous government on the earth and in obedience to God's commandment to warn the people of the impending disaster upon the nations."

Members of the group have run afoul of patriotic organizations and the law by refusing to salute the flag. Their theological justification is that it is a form of "image worship."

RFC Offers Wright Loan of $30,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 23.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has offered to lend about $30,000,000 to Wright Aeronautical Corporation for plant expansion in connection with the national defense program, Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, said today.

Jones said the loan had been offered several weeks ago on a basis of 4 per cent interest for an eight-year term, but that the company had not indicated whether it would take the money. He added that he presumed the company would arrange to obtain funds through private sources if it did not take the RFC loan.

Georgia To Get First U. S. Rural Rehousing Unit

Contract for Thomas County Farm Home Authorized.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 23. (AP)—Thomas county, in rural south Georgia, got the go-ahead signal today for construction of the nation's first low-rent farm home under the federal government's rural rehousing program.

Authorized for contract in Washington at a cost of $1,324, the five-room frame dwelling will be built on a one-acre plot, deeded to the Thomas county housing authority by its future tenant, low-income Farm-Owner Elbert B. Ellis.

The new home will be rented to Ellis for $50 a year, or approximately $4.17 a month. This, the government experts figure, will amortize the cost of construction over a period of 40 years, and pay probable repairs and other upkeep along the way.

To qualify under the government program, Ellis agreed to raze the ramshackle, sub-standard house which was on the property and give title to the local housing authority on the one-acre area.

The USHA contract went to Price E. Jinnright, Thomasville contractor, who agreed to build the five-room house, wire it for electricity, install a kitchen sink and construct an outside well and sealed privy. It will have a living room, kitchen and dining space, three bedrooms and storage space for food.

The dwelling is the first of 200 similar structures to be erected in Thomas county under a $337,000 loan approved by President Roosevelt and the USHA last March.

Five other states—Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Mississippi and South Carolina—have authorization for rural rehousing projects ranging from 200 to 300 units each, with total loan authorization of $2,522,000. None of these, however, have yet been placed in construction.

Kiwanis Urged To Honor New U. S. Citizens

International President Favors Special Day for This Purpose.

Setting aside of a special day to honor new citizens and give them certificates and copies of a manual of citizenship was advocated yesterday by Mark Smith, of Thomasville, Ga., president of Kiwanis International, in an address to Atlanta Kiwanians.

He urged that the American oath to the flag should be made compulsory in schools, and declared the country's ideals should be fostered through every possible channel.

Tennyson's conception of a world federation drew praise from the speaker.

"This is what is needed," he declared, "to pave the way to peace. We can best bring such a situation into existence by giving of our time and best efforts toward making better citizens of our boys and girls."

Seeks Road to Peace.

"It is our citizenship responsibility to find the road to peace and to put the feet of our youth on the right road if our America is going to continue; and no matter where we are, we must live the things in which we believe. We must be willing to sacrifice in order that these ideas may materialize. That is our price of liberty, our price of rendering a service. We can, as Kiwanians, do much to help the youth who are the custodians of America's future."

"We can do much to inspire them to carry on in the spirit of our founders and despite discouragements, and despite the attractive manner in which other 'ism' leaders may present their plan, God grant that we, as Americans, may find roads which all of us can travel to a better understanding of each other, and to greater service and happiness in the future."

"Let us teach them that there is no compromise with right or wrong, and neither is there any compromise with that person, or persons, who would instill in their minds any other than those principles and ideals upon which our great country was founded."

"Unlimited Progress."

"There are no bounds or limits to the progress we may make; our only limitations come from within ourselves, and if we give stintingly of our time and meet grudgingly our obligations, then in a scant and limited measure will we reap our reward."

"We must strive to eliminate every obstacle which would tend to distract our youth from true Americanism; we must take some definite step to show our recognition of those young men and young women who have reached the age of 21, as well as those who become naturalized citizens."

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP

Citizens of the United States have always known that their citizenship was a valuable possession. Aliens in this country are realizing now, if they have not before, how valuable an asset American citizenship has become.

For those residents in the United States who have neglected heretofore to seek citizenship, many valuable forms of protection have become or are becoming unavailable.

If you are seeking citizenship and are not sure just how to proceed, you will find the information you seek in the comprehensive bulletin "Citizenship and Naturalization" and in the circular accompanying it, "Questions Asked of Prospective Citizens," both of which you can obtain from The Constitution's Service Bureau, by using the coupon below:

Miss Burns To Be Presented At Terpsichorean Club Ball

• • • ONE OF THE MOST attractive visitors in the city is blond and vivacious Jacquelyn Burns, of Charlotte, N. C., who is the guest of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Grady Poole, in Druid Hills. Jacquelyn accompanied Mrs. Poole home from a weekend visit to Mr. and Mrs. Guy A. Burns, Jacquelyn's parents, and the minute the belle arrived in town the phone began ringing, with the result that her date-book is pretty well filled for her entire visit.

Jacquelyn has recently been accorded a social honor of distinction. The Terpsichorean Club of Raleigh, N. C., has selected her as one of the ten Charlotte belles to be presented at its annual debutante ball on September 29. Each year, it seems, this exclusive social organization chooses a number of the most popular girls in each of North Carolina's larger cities to be formally presented to society, after a custom of 20 years' standing. The governor of the state is always an honor guest, and the affair surpasses in social brilliance any other event of the season.

Jacquelyn finished a two-year course at Salem Academy in Winston-Salem, N. C., in June, and after her formal presentation to North Carolina society, she will enter Sweetbriar College in Virginia.

• • • THEY ARE both well known in tennis circles, and have numerous trophies to attest their prowess in the popular sport. The belle is a lovely exponent of the brunet type of beauty, and her naturally curly dark hair has inspired many a compliment from her friends and admirers.

The young man in question is as blond as his fiancée is brunet, and his steady courtship of her has led many to believe that wedding bells were not far distant. Although she now wears an exquisite solitaire on the telltale finger, she cannot be induced to tell when the wedding will take place!

Can you name them?

• • • GLANCING THROUGH a recent edition of the Louisville Courier-Journal, Sally's eye was drawn by an attractive feature page, on which were posed participants and onlookers at the fourth annual Lexington Junior League Horse Show. The affair, which was held last week at the trotting track in Lexington, Ky., attracted horsemen from all over the country.

Atlanta's in attendance who appeared in the photographs were Ben T. Smith, who was sitting with Charles T. Fisher, of Detroit, Mich., in the latter's box, and Lupton Veazey Rainwater, now of Highlands, N. C., who rode to glory for Vstop Farms. Lupton, who is well known for his horsemanship, is shown with a charming Indiana equestrienne, Nancy Moore, of Yorktown.

Miss Nita Jo Jett Weds Mr. Morgan

The marriage of Miss Nita Jo Jett to Horace Russell Morgan, was solemnized recently at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lon W. Steele, on Jonesboro road. The Rev. A. B. Caldwell, of Smyrna, officiated.

Garden flowers and candelabra holding lighted white tapers were placed against a background of palms to form an improvised altar. Miss Marie Gorgan, the maid of honor, wore a black and white costume with accessories to match and her flowers were sweet peas. Lucy Elizabeth Stockard, the little flower girl, wore a frock of blue and white dotted swiss and carried a nosegay of roses and sweet peas.

Cecil R. Stockard acted as best man for the groom and John D. Sargent was the usher. The bride was attired in a black and white ensemble, fashioned with a redingote, with which she wore black and white accessories. She carried a spray of white roses and valley lilies showered with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Steele, the bride's mother, was gowned in a black and white model with a shoulder bouquet of white roses. Mrs. G. M. Morgan, mother of the groom, wore a dark blue costume with a shoulder spray of gardenias.

Following the ceremony the bride's mother, Mrs. Steele, and Mrs. C. R. Stockard entertained at a reception, with Mrs. Grady Valentine assisting.

Later in the evening, the bridal couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains. They will reside on the Marietta road, Smyrna.

Among the out-of-town guests present for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Morgan and daughter, Nancy Jo, of Ellenwood; Mrs. R. J. Morgan, of Social Circle; Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Smith, of Lithonia; Mr. and Mrs. B. F. McHass, of Decatur; Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Caldwell, of Smyrna.

Roosevelt Auxiliary

Girl Scouts Enjoy Many Activities

Atlanta Girl Scout camp at Civitania opened for its second session recently with a rush of exciting adventures.

On Monday Gypsy Hill, the older girls' unit, took a station wagon trip to Groover's lake. In the party were Frances Adams, Roberta Leatherman, Martha Fox, Frances Bell, Dot Dunson, and Helen Parker. For the more experienced campers was a two-day trip to Toccoa to visit the Campfire Girls' camp. Those who went were Betty June Kilpatrick, Dot Kinnett, Louise Quayle, Jean Wallace, Wilma Shipley, Margaret Wolfe, Frances Salter, and Marguerite Wise.

Top o' the World, the intermediate unit, took a station wagon trip to Kennesaw mountain. The group included Ruth Agnew, Jackie Thompson, Joanne Neeley, Joanne Bailey, Dot Robbins, Pat Sewell, Loraine Steele, Beverly Banks, Connie Groover, Edna White, Marion Reynolds, Jean Saltsman, Billie van Houton, Gwendolyn Johnson, Mary Lester Sewell and Anne Roberts.

The pioneering group of Top o' the World are enthusiastically building a new outdoor kitchen and council ring. They plan an overnight hike today.

Robin Hood, the youngest unit, has built a new fireplace in the shape of a trefoil. They entertained Top o' the World recently with treasure hunt and a marshmallow roast, using the new fireplace.

On Wednesday Robin Hood group went boating at Groover's lake. Those attending were Ruth Richard, Patsy Coons, Sally Bishop, Betty Lou Frederick, Pat Schriener, Carolyn Lundy, Harriet Wing, Annie Laurie Thomas, Evelyn Phillips, Mildred Harris, Mildred Pittman, Odeen Green, Edna Price, Mary Carolyn Lindsey, Rita Richardson, Betty Jo Hendrick, Mary Lou Larpenteur.

Bridal Couple Will Be Honored

Among interesting social affairs planned will be the first supper at which Misses Louise Crew and Ellie Chandler will be hostesses at North Fulton park on Friday evening complimenting Miss Gladys Lewis and Victor Davis, whose marriage will be an event of next month.

Thirty-five friends of the hostesses and honor guests are invited. Additional parties have been planned for the couple, the dates and nature of these affairs to be announced later.

Family Reunion

Friends and relatives of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeff E. Conner are invited to attend the fifth annual family reunion on July 28 at the home of Mrs. Ralph Palmer on the Loganfield road. Guests are requested to bring basket lunches and to arrive at the home of Mrs. Palmer at 10 o'clock.

Miss Hill To Be Complimented At Series of Social Affairs

Mrs. E. Marvin Underwood will entertain at tea this afternoon at her home on Avery drive in compliment to Miss Virginia Hill, whose marriage to William Thurman will be an interesting event of August 20.

Mrs. Underwood will be assisted in entertaining her guests by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Frank Hill, and her sister, Miss Lillabelle Hill; Mrs. Hal Steed and Mrs. Henry Poer.

On Saturday afternoon the lovely bride-to-be will be honored at the party at which Miss Betty Fuller will be hostess at her home on Fredericka place. That evening Miss Frances Outler and Miss Lillian Lee will be co-hostesses at a kitchen shower at the home of the latter on St. Charles place for Miss Hill.

On July 29 Mrs. W. L. McCalley Jr. and her daughter, Miss Catherine McCalley, will give a hosiery shower for the attractive bride-elect at their home on Westwood avenue. On July 30 Mrs. Hal Steed and Mrs. Henry Poer will honor Miss Hill at a tea at the home of the later on The Prado.

On August 3 Mrs. Ada R. Jones and Mrs. Harold Ellison will give a shower at the home of Mrs. Jones on Westwood avenue, honoring Miss Hill. On August 9 Mrs. Hudson East, of Lake Charles, La., will entertain at a luncheon for Miss Hill's wedding attendants at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. H. Hayes, on Altoona place. On August 17 Miss Lillabelle Hill will honor her sister and her wedding attendants at luncheon.

Mrs. T. A. Osiecki entertained at a linen shower recently at the home of her mother, Mrs. T. D.

Ann Miller Replaces Eleanor Powell

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, July 23.—Eleanor Powell has been forbidden to dance. It may be a year before her doctors say it's all right for her to dance again. It may be longer than that. Eleanor's recent operation was more severe than most people here realize. She overworked in the picture she made with Fred Astaire, "Broadway Melody of 1940." She wanted to continue the dancing partnership and did more than her body could endure. This retirement—which I hope is temporary—means that Miss Powell's leading role in Ziegfeld Girl goes to 21-year-old Ann Miller.

"Will you marry me?" Ann Sheridan asks George Brent. "I'll think it over," says George cautiously. These are the first words spoken by the couple in their movie, "Honeymoon for Three." Did I get you all worked up? When Kay Francis kissed Elsie the "oomph" cow, who appears in Kay's "Little Men," she turned to ask Oskier and said, "What chance do we old 'uns have against an eight-year-old cow?" "I'll say this for Kay. She has a sense of humor."

They say that the reason for the cooling of the romance of Garbo and Doc Hauser was his request that she endorse his new book on dietetics. . . . and, by the way, contrary to report, Garbo soon taris drawing $250,000 guaranteed her each year whether or not he makes a picture. Better hurry in and find her something, Mel-o.

Cutest sight of the week—Hedy Lamarr practicing a posture exercise in the middle of a studio street.

Pat O'Brien denies that he has signed a new three-picture-a-year contract at Warners. "I want to be completely free," he told the reporter. Pat is at his Del Mar racetrack now for eight weeks. His investment here has already netted the owners (including Bing Crosby, Jimmy Cagney, and Frank McHugh) the nice total of half a million dollars. With that sort of lough, why toil 'neath studio lights?

Every time George Cukor loses a pound—and he's still losing, he had to send his $200 suits back for revision. George is so thin that he finds the ordinary canvas chairs on the set too hard—and he reposes on a cushion. Katherine Hepburn has put on weight. She has to wear a swimming suit in "The Philadelphia Story," and after seeing the first rushes Katie yelled, "I don't think that suit does justice to my figure." But she knew it wasn't the suit and started on an eating program—suits her, too (no pun intended).

Shirley Temple is writing her memoirs! I understand that the 11-year-old wonder has received a fat offer from an eastern publishing house for the book rights of her life story. As a tribute to the job, Shirley is studying the Encyclopedia Britannica and is up to the letters "Bu." And while we're literary, the father of Forrest Tucker, who is a publisher, has asked a dozen of the younger Hollywood players to contribute toward a book titled something like—"The Dreams We Dreamed." Among the authors are Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney, Ann Rutherford, Jackie Cooper, Linda Darnell and Helen Parrish. The latter lady recently broke her engagement to Mr. Tucker's son, Forrest.

Simone Simon sounded very discouraged the other evening. "I must work, I must work," I heard her tell her agent. "I'm told that Simone lost most of her savings in France. Why not give her another chance, Hollywood?" She seemed to have learned her lesson pretty thoroughly, and I thought she was good in that first film of hers, "Girl's Dormitory." Didn't you?

Joel McCrea and Gary Cooper recently went on a hunting trip together, and someone asked McCrea afterwards, "What is Cooper like? What did he say, and so forth." Joel was not in a position to tell because Gary didn't say a word during the trip. The nearest Gary came to speech was just before each shot—when he'd clear his throat!

Suggest White Suit for Hot Weather

By Yolande Gwin.

The heat wave may have disarming effects on your disposition, but if you desire Peace in the Home, see that you keep a cool head.

This can be achieved for your own comfort as well as that of The Man In Your Life, if you first cater to his vanity. Praise his judgment, ask for advice and applaud his "long-headedness." This long-headedness, of course, is directed at his choice of clothes for the hot weather era. If necessary, just talk yourself into a regular heat wave, just so you have Your Man looking cool and fresh in crisp white suits, which will be a perfect foil for his already deep-tanned skin.

Have you ever noticed how cool, quiet and attractive the internes look in the hospitals wearing crisp white uniforms? Well, take that as a cue and use it to influence your man to wear crisp white suits every day now.

If he doesn't have the urge to buy him several more suits, so that he will look clean, cool and fresh, you will have to use the word method. Say it with words and you can go as far as you like. It doesn't matter whether you lay it on delicately with a camel's hair brush or slap it on with a trowel, some of it is bound to stick. Fill him with self-admiration. Just let him think he can accomplish the impossible if he wears a white suit and a blue tie just watch him go into action.

"Clothes conscience" is a summer dish which may be served every day with satisfying results.

Woman's Quiz

Q. What food combinations are dangerous for human beings?
A. There is no physiological foundation for the belief that the various constituents in natural foods cannot be digested satisfactorily when eaten together at one meal. Food that is fresh, properly prepared and properly eaten may be taken in any combination by the average person.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor of The Constitution, 1013 13th Street, N.W., Washington, D. C. for a reply. Don't telephone, write as directed.

Youthful zest is captured here by Gale Storm, lovely RKO Radio actress. Her all-in-one shorts and blouse ensemble of white waffle pique was fashioned by Renie, studio stylist. Bright blue soutache braid is used to advantage on the detailed blouse. White hand-knit anklets and Mexican sandals complete the costume.

Swimming Is Most Effective Outdoor Sport for Slimming

By Ida Jean Kain.

What if you were under contract to swim for a couple of hours a day, every day in the week? What do you think it would do for your looks? Well, from all the evidence presented by the aquabellies comprising Billy Rose's famous show, your figure would be something to daydream about!

The swimmer silhouette is really perfection: A beautiful pair of shoulders, a firm, high bust, and a slimly tapering waist and hips. The best of it is, Mr. Rose declares, the swimmers have no "weight" worries and their figures improve from a season of this activity.

The average girl can consider herself lucky if her hips are no more than two inches larger than the bust. That's a good proportion! But the swimmer can boast a hips that is smaller than the bust! And, invariably, she has a diminutive waist.

Jane Spence, with one of the most gorgeous figures in the line-up, runs true to form. Her measurements are: Bust, 35 inches; waist, 26 inches; and hips, 34 inches. She is five feet, three and one-half inches tall and weighs 113 pounds. As an afterthought, we'll tell you that she has a 2-year-old youngster!

Then, there's lovely Bette Carr, five feet six, with this kind of symmetry: Bust, 35 inches; waist, 24 inches; and hips, 34 inches. Those 34-inch hips seem to be the rule. Little Marjorie Neal, another bit of perfection, measures 24 inches through the bust and hips and has a 23 1-2-inch waist.

Personally, Mr. Rose regards Eleanor Holm's figure as the ideal—and to keep you from imagining his opinion is influenced by the fact that she is Mrs. Rose, we'll give you her measurements: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 24 inches; hips, 33 inches. She is five feet two and weighs 108 pounds.

A quick glance at these statistics on symmetry reveals the difference between the figures in a top-flight show and those you see on the streets. The former is characterized by wide shoulders, a slimly tapered waist and streamlined hips. The average figure is a sharp contrast—it's narrow at the top and gets wider!

Although avoiditopes never warries them, the belles take a keen interest in comparing notes on pounds and inches. Amazingly enough, their experience seems to establish swimming as the perfect streamlining exercise for the fat or the thin. When they swim regularly the thin girls gain and the fat ones lose.

Of course, these girls are expert swimmers—some are champions! Long before they turned swimming into a weekly pay check they did it for fun—and they still do! Their idea of the best way to spend time off is to "go to the beach whenever we can get someone to take us!"

But there is still another point in favor of your taking up swimming as an exercise and a hobby. It is as marvelous for the health as it is for the figure. The doctor who watches out for the health of this group of girls declares they are blustery and too chilly for swimming—as it was last spring—they never catch colds.

Treat Family To Light Desserts

Try Calcium Treatment Of Arthritis

By Dr. William Brady.

For many years readers have been reporting in letters to this column their satisfaction from taking various forms of calcium for "rheumatism."

Fundamentally I'm skeptical of the remedial value of most medicines if not a therapeutic nihilist, so I have generally credited these beneficial results to Old Doctor Coincidence.

Since the recently introduced high potency vitamin D treatment of chronic arthritis has come into wide use, with most encouraging results in many obstinate cases, I have been constrained to abate my incredulity a jot and a couple of titles. Not that the high potency or massive dose vitamin D treatment is a sure cure or even a panacea, but in a fair proportion of cases of advanced chronic arthritis which fails to respond to other remedies or therapeutic measures a daily dose of from 200,000 to 400,000 U. S. P. XI units of vitamin D (4 to 8 teaspoonfuls of D in oil, or 4 to 8 capsules daily) for several months, appears to bring about gratifying improvement, in some instances restoring the patient from a crippled or helpless state to his or her normal occupation. (Details of the treatment are given in monograph on "Arthritis," available on request if you inclose stamped envelope bearing your address).

The physiological action or function of calcium (lime) in the body is somewhat complicated for the comprehension of the layman, but briefly it is essential for ossification of bone, for regulation of nerve-muscular irritability or excitement, for efficient contraction of the muscle of heart and artery wall, for normal clotting of blood, and to maintain normal permeability of capillary endothelium or to diminish excessive permeability of the capillary endothelium.

One of the important physiological actions or functions of vitamin D is to promote absorption, assimilation and utilization of calcium.

Best food sources of calcium for anybody are milk, cheese (every kind), egg yolk, green vegetables, raw cabbage, carrots, turnips, dried peas, beans, nuts, peanuts, cauliflower, string beans, oysters, watercress, dandelion greens, radishes, celery, onions, orange and orange juice, tomato or tomato juice, plain wheat, oatmeal or rolled oats, rhubarb, lemon or lemon juice, asparagus, lettuce, parsnips. Any one with arthritis or, if you prefer, "chronic rheumatism" should dismiss from his mind any delusions or fancies he may have about "acid" in any such food and include these calcium-rich foods in his daily diet as a simple matter of good nutrition and good health.

The daily requirement of the body is estimated at about ten grains of elementary calcium for the adult, at least 15 or 18 grains for the child.

Only one-fourth of the calcium present in food is or can be absorbed or utilized—the other three-fourths of it is excreted in the feces. Remember that vitamin D is necessary for absorption and utilization of calcium. Acidity in the small intestine also favors better absorption and utilization of calcium.

Potassium for Allergy.
For many years I have had to avoid indulging in strawberries, which I dearly love, because as sure as anything if I eat even one I get an eruption of cold sores on face or lip. Two months ago I came across your article on the value of soluble potassium chloride for allergy. I got some, and had a go at some fine strawberries a night or two ago. I took 10 grains of the soluble potassium chloride soon after eating the strawberries. Eureka! And Whoops! No trouble at all.

(T. S. C.)
Answer—Further particulars on the use of soluble potassium chloride (which is not any old potassium chloride) to prevent and relieve allergy in monograph "Relief for Allergy," sent on request if you inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address. Many persons similarly sensitive to this or that food have found that a dose of potassium shortly after eating the food prevents the upset or moderates it.

High Vitamin A Diet.
Kindly give the high vitamin A diet again. (Mrs. A. McM.)

Answer—One to two pints of milk daily, two eggs, marmalade liver, green vegetables, carrots, and either two tablespoonfuls of cod liver oil daily or two capsules of natural vitamin A (each capsule contains 25,000 units, equivalent to the amount present in two or three tablespoonfuls of cod liver oil).

MY DAY: The Dwindling Of a Family

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Monday.—Two young girls came to lunch with us yesterday and, while we sat talking, the news came that my husband's aunt, Mrs. Forbes, had died. In the late afternoon, Miss Thompson and I drove down to Newburgh to see the family there and to find out if there was anything I could do.

I telephoned my husband and Franklin Jr. and Ethel. I shall be able to go down this afternoon, for the funeral service is in Newburgh. I hope, since the interment is in Fairhaven, Mass., our son John will be able to meet his grandmother there.

I thought my husband looked rather tired and sad this morning. I know that having only three members of the older Delano family left, will make a real break in a very close family circle.

Last night Franklin Jr. and Ethel had supper with us and we talked until late this morning. After my husband, Ambassador Bullitt and Miss Le Hand arrived, Franklin Jr. and I went out for a ride. It was pretty hot, however, and the flies made life miserable for man and beast, so we were not gone long.

Before coming in, we rode into the garden and Franklin III was put up on the saddle in front of his father. He seemed to enjoy every minute of the little walk which the big hunter took with him perched on his back. When he was lifted off, he kept repeating, "Again, again," and seemed disgusted that there was no further ride in store. I was amused, for when we tried to put him on the pony by himself, he refused to have anything to do with riding.

I have been asked to tell my readers that it is not an outright insurance by the government which guarantees their deposits in savings banks, but that banks which are members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Company have their deposits insured to a maximum of $5,000 per individual account.

They buy and pay for this insurance and the government does not have to contribute to it, but I think it is only fair to say that this was initiated by the present administration in Washington. It is only because the government is willing to do this for the banks that you, as an individual, can have up to $5,000 insured in your savings bank account, if you choose a bank which takes advantage of this opportunity offered by the government. If this insurance had been available before 1929, a number of people might still have their life savings.

Girl Writes That Friends Tease Her About Height

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: An awful thing has happened to me. I have outgrown my boy friend, am four inches taller than he and he is ashamed to be seen with me on the street. He is 21 and won't grow any more. We love each other and really I don't mind the difference in our sizes but everybody teases us and he is terribly sensitive about it. I believe it is going to cost me his love eventually. I feel so helpless because it is one of those things you can't talk about, the more you say the worse it seems. What would you do if you were in my place?

DEJECTED.

Answer: I'd work like a Trojan to keep the boy friends from thinking about feet and inches. I'd do and say everything possible to make him feel big and strong. I'd tell my friends to lay off the subject or difference in our heights, explaining that the boy friends was terribly sensitive about it, while I pretended to him I hadn't noticed his sensitiveness. I wouldn't urge him to go anywhere he didn't want to go with me, but at home I'd try to be gay and happy and give him a good time.

I would try to convert my height into a personal distinction instead of looking like I was ashamed of myself. I'd hold my head up and refuse to slink around and slump down. Next to personal daintiness dignity is a girl's best social asset and the tall girl is geared for dignity. Of course, we don't mean a stiff back, stilted manners, tilted nose and haughty airs. We are talking about an easy grace and poise that is the expression of a calm and self-possessed nature. Dignity is attractive because it says, "Everything is under control."

A young boy is pretty foxy

Wear Suitable Clothes

KEEPING SMART not only means wearing clothes suitable for company you are keeping—but to minimize the defects, which, alas, we all possess. If your waist is bulky instead of slim, try a foundation. If it's the size of your feet, make it a point to make your trip to the shoe emporium an expedition, not just a junket, and be sure to find a pair that will not only fit, but flatter as well. There are sundry styles to select from. For instance: white suede pumps; perennial spectator sports (with sturdy leather heel, in two-color leather combinations if you so prefer); suave wedges (they do make your foot look smaller); sandals, moccasins. But whatever you do, remember dog days are coming, so do not sacrifice comfort to beauty.

Young, Old Like Peach Tapioca

By Sally Saver.

Don't forget the possibilities of creamy, digestible tapioca in providing summer desserts for members of the family both old and young. Tapioca is a form of milk pudding, and it combines with many fresh fruits, making a dessert of unusual healthfulness. Make peach tapioca this way:

Peach Tapioca.

- 1/4 cup quick-cooking tapioca
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 or 2 egg yolks
- 4 cups milk
- 1 or 2 egg whites
- 1 teaspoon flavoring

Combine quick cooking tapioca, sugar, salt, egg yolk, and milk in top of double boiler and stir enough of break yolk. Place over rapidly boiling water, bring to scalding point (allow 5 to 7 minutes), and cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from boiling water. Beat egg white until just stiff enough to hold shape. Fold small amount of tapioca mixture into egg white; then add egg white to other tapioca mixture. Cool mixture thickens as it cools. When slightly cool, add flavoring; chill thoroughly. Serve with fresh sliced peaches. Serves 8.

Chocolate Tapioca Cream is a dessert treat that children love. Here is the recipe:

Chocolate Tapioca Cream.

- 4 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
- 1-2 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg yolk
- 4 cups milk
- 1 egg white, stiffly beaten
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, cut in pieces.
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Proceed according to directions given for making the peach tapioca. Serve in sherbet glasses, topped with whipped cream. Questions about foods, recipes, cooking and service will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or WA. 6565.

Today's Charm Tip.

The woman who tries something a little different occasionally, just for the sake of trying it, will never be bored with herself, or her friends bored with her.

A Clean-Cut Workaday Frock

By Lillian Mae.

"Simplicity" is the password to smartness in make-at-home styles. This Lillian Mae shirtwaister, Pattern 4461, has crisp, clean, young lines and sparing but tasteful details. Both the front and back skirt are paneled; option pockets give extra dash. The soft-cut bodice has a youthful, collarless neckline and fastens with gay button duets. Aren't the pointed yokes attractive with those "sunburnt" tucks below? Have short sleeves, perhaps with trim bands, or make straight, long sleeves. The entire bodice might look striking in contrast—why not try a striped-with-plain combination? This will be the busiest member of your wardrobe!

Pattern 4461 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1-2 yards 30-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Parties Planned For Mrs. Johnson

Complimenting one of the city's loveliest visitors, Mrs. Bob Johnson, of Richmond, Va., will be many social affairs, among which is the luncheon at which Miss Andy Dumas will entertain on Friday in the Mirador room of the Capital City Club, to be followed by bridge at the home of the hostess on Howell Mill road. Mrs. Johnson, who is the former Miss Alice Garner, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Garner, at their home on Seventeenth street.

Yesterday the attractive visitor was central figure at the swimming party and luncheon at which Mrs. James D. Porter entertained at the Ansley Park Golf Club.

Present were Mesdames William Brooks, G. D. Garner, Alvin Wingfield Jr., and Miss Andy Dumas. On Monday Mrs. Garner feted her daughter, Mrs. Johnson, at a luncheon at the Mirador room. Invited were Misses Andy Dumas, Dorothy Mees, Louise Sims, Peggy Dutton, Virginia Burk, of Troy, N. Y.; Jean Pentecost, Sara Jarvis and Mrs. William Brooks.

Other affairs planned in honor of Mrs. Johnson will be announced later.

MRS. EDWARD RUSSELL COLLINS.

Miss Rebecca Jones Marries Mr. Collins at Church Rites

The marriage of Miss Rebecca Frances Jones and Edward Russell Collins was quietly solemnized on Tuesday evening at the First Christian church. Dr. C. R. Stauffer officiated in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

The attendants were Mrs. Robert J. Loftin and Jonson Collins, sister and brother of the groom. The bride wore an attractive ensemble of navy and powder blue crepe and matching navy accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of purple orchids.

The bride is the youngest daughter of W. H. Jones and the late Mrs. Jones. She is connected with the First National bank. Mr. Collins is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Collins. He is affiliated in business with the Atlanta office of the Fafnir Bearings, Inc.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside at 236 Howard street, N. E.

Musicales Planned At Hinman Home

A musicale for the benefit of the Arcane Fund for Refugee Children will be given at the home of Mrs. George B. Hinman, 923 Piedmont avenue, N. E., Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The purpose of this fund is to establish villages throughout the country to take care of the refugee children sent over from England. The proceeds of this musicale will help to establish a village near Greensboro, N. C., where the use of a farm has already been donated.

The program will consist of a group of cello numbers by Mrs. Leroy Loecker, a piano group by Miss Eugenia Snow, and a group of songs by Miss Cara Hinman. Mrs. Paul Bryan will accompany Mrs. Loecker and Miss Hinman.

The guests will be received by Miss Hinman's sisters, Mrs. Ruth Hinman Carter and Mrs. Gene Cantrell, assisted by Mrs. Jack Sharpe and Mrs. Julian Barrett. Those interested in the cause are invited. Contributions will be voluntary.

This musicale is the first of a series for this purpose the others will be announced later.

Miss Flora Wright Honored at Party

Among interesting social affairs yesterday was the luncheon at which Mrs. Harry Bewick was hostess at the Piedmont Driving Club, honoring her niece, Miss Flora Wright, of London, England, who is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Edward T. Donnelly, at her home on Peachtree road.

The luncheon table was centered with a silver bowl filled with a graceful arrangement of summer flowers.

Covers were laid for a group of friends of the honor guest.

For Miss Merritt

Miss Marion Merritt was honor guest yesterday at the skating party at which her mother, Mrs. C. B. Merritt, entertained, the occasion making the honor guest's ninth birthday anniversary.

Crackers Beat Clicks, 7-2; Gain Virtual Tie for Lead as Vols Lose

BY JACK TROY

Tough Task Frank Howard, who was named to the head coaching position at Clemson when Jess Neely resigned to take over at Rice, is now looking for something about as easy to find as a needle in a haystack or a small rubber ball in the ocean. Howard is trying to locate a successor to Banks McFadden, Clemson's great All-America back.

He isn't worrying too much about it now, however. He has gone fishing and left the problem with the drugstore quarterbacks. He'll put his mind to the matter around September 1.

In order for a boy to be another McFadden, he must be over six feet tall. He must be able to run, punt, pass, and direct a team.

Listing candidates recently, Howard reported the following material will be available—

- (1)—A running, kicking back who can't pass.
- (2)—A running, passing back who can't kick.
- (3)—A kicking, passing back who can't run.

One of the chief headaches of a new head coach is to come into a job as a great star departs.

Even without McFadden, however, Clemson won't be one of the weaker teams around next fall. Or at least, that's the word from the Carolinas.

Local Problem Georgia Tech won't find it the easiest thing in the world to replace a boy like Buck Murphy, not to mention Howard Ector.

Captain Murphy probably was one of the country's most valuable backs last year. He seldom carried the ball. But he was a great aide to those who did (for his side) and a terrible pain to those who came through from the other side of the line.

Murphy was a great blocking and defensive back. And I imagine if you were able to pin down the Tech coaching staff, they'd tell you it will be a great deal harder to replace Murphy than any other departing player.

Ferdinand's Corner Nick CULLOP's batting average has dropped off to .266, but the old gentleman nevertheless leads the Texas league in runs batted in with 73. . . . He has slammed out

Kirby Has 76 To Win Medal At Asheville

Louise Suggs Does 82 To Win 3d Place in Qualifying.

By DOROTHY KIRBY.
BILTMORE FOREST CLUB, July 23.—Today was one of those days that all participants in a tournament dread—qualifying day. A score of 99 got in and there were two other flights besides the championship.

There was due to be a third flight, in fact, there was one, but only one lady was in it. So she won it hands down.

The only Atlantans to make the championship were Louise Suggs, with 82; Mrs. W. D. Tumlin, with 99; Mrs. Sweeney, with 99, and myself, with 76. I came in with the low score for the qualifying medal.

37 AND 39.
I was out in 37 and back in 39. It was sort of rough going on the back side. As usual, I can look over the car and cut many a stroke off that 76. My shots were going pretty well. That makes two days in a row now that I have been hitting the ball. I can't understand it!

One thing which helps scoring is the fact that these greens are wonderful. They are as true as can be. Louise Suggs was playing much better today and really better than her 82 indicated.

She was going along smoothly until the seventh hole. Here is where her troubles started. Her drive was hooked in the woods and we thought the ball was lost after looking for it for a while. But as she went back to the tee to play another ball we found the first one before she hit the second ball. However, she played both balls out and got a six with the first and a seven with the second.

SUGGS IN TROUBLE.
It was ruled that her second ball should be counted, so that gave her a seven. The eighth she three-putted and then took a five on the ninth. If all this hadn't occurred her score would have been much different. Anyway she finished third in the qualifying.

Jane Cuthbert was second with 79. Jane came from Orangeburg, S. C., and is only 18. It seems as though she will be hard to stop in this tournament, for she is hitting her shots.

The defending champ, Jane Cuthbert, slipped from her usual game and took an 83. Jane was out in 37 but had all sorts of trouble getting into the cups on the back side, and wound up with a 46.

Mrs. Tom Neblett is here. She is living in New Orleans now but once lived in Atlanta. She had a 90 which is away above what she usually shoots. The girl from Augusta, Eileen Stubb, shot a fine 87.

Barons Pound Adams, Defeat Volunteers, 7-3

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 23.—(P)—The Birmingham Barons pounded Nashville, 7-3, here tonight behind Zack Schuessler's pitching to win three out four games in the series.

While Schuessler settled down after a shaky start, Adams permitted only one run in the fourth and was going strong until the seventh, when he hit the ceiling. Larry Gilbert yanked him after three runs came in, but it was too late.

NEW SMOOKIES 3; PELS 4.
A timely single by Earl Browne in the tenth inning here today broke a tie and gave New Orleans a 4-to-3 victory over Knoxville in the final game of the series.

The Pelicans came from behind in the ninth to force the extra inning and beat John Hubbell, brother of Carl Hubbell, of the Giants.

Score Sheet

The Crackers last night defeated Memphis and return to Ponce de Leon tonight to battle Chattanooga in the opener of a three-game series. Harry Mehre picked Tech along with Tennessee and Tulane as S. E. C. favorites and tags Georgia and L. S. U. as "surprise" teams. The Dodgers called Pete Reiser in from Montreal and let out Charlie Gilbert. The deal was made to bolster Brooklyn batting, but the Reds made this plan backfire with a double victory and a fist fight thrown in. . . . Ab Jenkins finished a 24-hour run during which he averaged 161.18 mph. and set 21 world's speed records. Bobby Holloman caught an 18-pound carp and W. C. Bussey took a 15-pounder from Piedmont lake. . . . Dorothy Kirby won the Biltmore medal with a 76. . . . Roy Weatherly was given his choice of storming at the umpires or taking a rest for the remainder of the season. . . . Pitcher Moran, of Oakland City, blanked Smyrna 13 innings to win a 14-inning game, 5-2. . . . Bryan Grant entered the third round of the Seabright net meet. . . . Three Atlantans survived the qualifying in the national public links tournament at Detroit and begin match play today.

Thursday Honors Engel

The Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, in co-operation with the Shrine Temple, which is sponsoring the Cracker-Chattanooga baseball game Thursday night, will honor the Shriner and Joe Engel at their regular luncheon Thursday at the Ansley.

The Shriner-Jaycee dinner will start at 12:15 o'clock and Shriner who have not made their reservations are urged to do so by calling the Junior Chamber of Commerce office, W.A. 8845.

Youth Lands Jumping Joe, 18-Pound Carp

Bobby Holloman Claims Season's Record for Piedmont's Largest.

Old Joe jumps all right. And Old Joe jumps by the clock. But there are lots of Old Joes gliding through the deep green waters of Piedmont lake.

This is a 39-cent way of exploding another myth—an afternoon paper myth that had Old Joe jumping to the stop watch.

The story had Old Joe, a whale-some sort of carp, unbudging himself of the whole lake at certain specific intervals, say about every other week.

Bobby Holloman, an Atlanta messenger, roped a 14-pound carp last Saturday at the lake and it was feared Old Joe would leap no more. He went back Tuesday, gunning for bigger fish. He used the same lure, a vial of common dough. He didn't even use self-rising flour.

W. C. Bussey, another Atlanta boy, went along to beat Holloman's record. Shortly after 2 o'clock Old Joe went foraging. Bussey's dough was the easiest target. It was handy and the weather was too hot to swim far. So Joe took it lazily. But it bit back and Joe and Bussey went to war.

When it ended Holloman looked at his timepiece. "It's exactly 2:30," he observed. "This is exactly when I got 'im last—"

Another Joe had struck. Holloman pulled him in—18 pounds of indolent fish with some of the scales torn off in the melee.

The Atlanta boy thus claims the season's record for the two largest carp taken on rod and reel. Old Joe, the figures, still swims. But there are a lot of fish in the lake named Joe.

33 POUNDS OF "JOES"—Piedmont lake is the scene of many fishing incidents. In the spring it yielded a 34-pound bass to a four-year-old girl. Yesterday two giant carp were taken from the municipal park waters. W. C. Bussey, left, holds his 15-pounder and Bobby Holloman muscles up an 18-pounder. Both fish were caught on hooks baited with "doughballs."

Cullop May Pilot Buffs Knee Throws Richardson

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Dixie Sports Shots: Al Smith, who beats the drums for L. S. U. athletic teams, is in town for a couple of days. . . . He reports Sonny Richardson, star of the all-star prep game here last summer, has been thrown for a loss by a bad knee. . . . The ex-G. M. A. fullback went great as a freshman but missed most of spring practice because of his knee. . . . Richardson is being planned by the Shriners for "Shrine Night" Thursday at the ball park. . . . Festivities will start with a luncheon honoring Joe Engel today.

Around the S. E. C.: There are only 10 letters on this year's Alabama gridiron squad. . . . Only five of the 58 candidates are seniors. . . . There is only one school in the league which doesn't want a commissioner, according to report. . . . Don't be surprised if Junior Steve Hughes plays more center this fall for Georgia than either Veteran Tommy Witt or Homer Passmore, the highly-publicized sophomore. . . . And before Georgia Tech finishes her season, the name of "Hardrock" Jordan is likely to be in the starting lineup at a guard post.

Contrast: While Jack Dempsey and Cowboy Luttrell were having their little party here recently, Gene Tunney and the Mrs. were applauding Lily Pons, the opera singer, in New York.

Diamond Doin's: Russ Peters is leading the Cleveland Indians in batting. . . . He is hitting .353, but has been on only 19 times. . . . Johnny Rizzo is making the pirates and Reds sad. . . . After both clubs decided they couldn't use him, he wound up with the Phillies and has hit 13 homers while batting an even .300. . . . Howard Ector, the sensational Houston youngster who set a Texas League record by winning his first 12 starts of the season, recently won his 16th game. . . . he has lost four. . . . Incidentally, Eddie Dyer, who has managed the Buffs to their top position in the league, is being mentioned as the next St. Louis Cardinal pilot. . . . If and when it happens, Old Nick Cullop will take over at Houston.

Oakland Triumphs As Morgan Stars
SMYRNA, Ga., July 23.—Pitcher Morgan held Smyrna runless for 13 consecutive innings here today to give Oakland City a 5-2 victory in a 14-inning marathon. He gave up only six hits and fanned eight. Camp, Cook and Morgan paced the hitting for Oakland.

Grant Defeats Bill Canning; Horn Is Upset

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 23.—(P)—Two s.d. performers—Welby Van Horn, of Los Angeles, and George Lytle-Rogers, of Ireland—were driven to the sidelines today in upset conquests as the annual Seabright Lawn Tennis Club tourney went into the round before the quarter-finals.

Isadore Bell, of Philadelphia, ousted Van Horn, 6-8, 6-8, 6-2. The second day was a good one for veterans all along the line. Former National Tiltist Wilmer Allison, Houston, Texas; Ladislav Hecht, erstwhile Czechoslovakia Davis cup ace; Bryan M. Grant, Atlanta, and Henry P. Prusoff, Seattle, survived extended tests.

Grant defeated Bill Canning, Alameda, Cal., 7-5, 6-4.

Vols, Wave, Tech Best, Says Mehre

UNIVERSITY, Miss., July 23. (P)—Coach Harry Mehre, of Ole Miss, today marched out on a well-supported limb to favor Tennessee, Tulane and Georgia Tech for the 1940 gridiron campaign in the Southeastern conference.

If voting for a single team, Mehre said he would stick with the field by selecting Georgia and Louisiana State a "surprise" teams for the loop, and reinforced the theory that Mississippi State should be one of the leaders for '40.

Mailho Slams Three Safeties; Kerksieck Cops

Crackers Open Home Stand Tonight Against Chattanooga Club.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 23.—The Crackers climaxed a season-long fight to dislodge Nashville from first place tonight by moving into a virtual tie with the Vols.

The Crackers got there by licking Memphis, 7 to 2, while Birmingham was bumping off Larry Gilbert's lads, 7 to 3.

To Wayman Kerksieck went the honor of pitching the Atlantans into the big spot: to Emil Mailho, Johnny Hill and Willard Marshall the honor of producing more than the necessary amount of runs.

Not so generous Monday, the Chicks went back to their giving ways tonight in the first inning. With one down Anderson walked and went to third on Mailho's single. Hill flied short to left field and Smith dropped Naylor's peg, letting Anderson score. Then Marshall rattled the right-field boards with a double to score Mailho from second.

The Crackers ended a two-week road trip last night, and return to Ponce de Leon tonight to battle the Chattanooga Lookouts in the opener of a three-game series.

Matuzak presented Glock with a walk and Anderson and Mailho followed with singles, Mailho's blow scoring Glock and sending Anderson to third. Matuzak was hauled out and Joe Kohlman sent in. Hill's pop fly fell behind first for a single, scoring Mailho. Marshall hit into a double play, but Mailho stole home while Suydam, who had walked, was being erased in a chase between first and second.

Kohlman started getting his bumps in the seventh. He walked Glock and Anderson sacrificed. Mailho singled and Glock stopped at third only long enough for Hill to single. Mailho won his third and scored as Marshall forced Hill.

THE MORTAL STORM

Emil Drives His Mother and Freya To the Mabergs in the Early Morning

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

THE MORTAL STORM. Accompanying her Communist lover, Hans, Emil, the son of the late Emil, is fleeing from the Nazis. Freya, his mother, is a Jewess who has been persecuted by the Nazis. She is now in the hands of the Gestapo. Emil, who is a Jew, is also being persecuted. He is now in the hands of the Gestapo. The story is a tragedy of the Jewish people in Germany.

INSTALLMENT IX. "Perhaps Anton Kleinmetz," she said at last. "I do not know that he would help me—but if he would I should trust his work." Her father went at once to the telephone, and came back to tell her that Kleinmetz had consented. There was nothing left to do now, but for Freya to eat and sleep, until they started.

She still could not eat; but she drank some milk that her mother brought her from time to time, and for hours watched her mother moving softly about the room, collecting and packing her things. Her mother would not let Freya move from her bed to help her. The windows of the room were all wide open.

There were no sounds in the street. The spring air blew softly behind the curtains. Once Freya caught a sudden gust of lilac and sweetness hurt her so that she cried out; but nothing else happened, and at last, while her mother was still packing, Freya fell asleep.

When she woke on the day of their departure, it was broad daylight and all her senses were in a curious blind fear, until she remembered.

She got up then, very quickly, and dressed, as if her life depended on rushing from one thing to another, without a moment's pause between.

It passed through her mind that she had not yet seen Emil, perhaps he was afraid that since he was a Nazi, she would hate him. But, after all, the Emil—long before he was a Nazi—and even though he didn't try to help Hans, as Olaf did—he is still Emil!

She was glad when she heard his knock at the door. He had brought her coffee, and prepared an early breakfast, to save their mother's getting up any earlier than she needed. When Freya smiled at Emil, he put down the coffee-cup very carefully on the dressing-table, and turning, kissed her so hard that he nearly knocked her down.

"You must eat something!" he said hurriedly, trying to butter the roll he brought her, nicely in the middle; and to please him Freya swallowed the first food she had eaten since Hans was killed; but it hurt her to swallow it.

Her mother was waiting in the hall, all dressed and ready, with the luggage Emil had brought down, and her father in his dressing-gown hovered about like an enormous bumblebee, anxious to help but confused in his directions.

Rudi still slept, and the servants were not yet downstairs. It was not so difficult to go away after all. Freya sat in front of the car with Emil. If she she behind, she knew it would remind her too much of the drive from the frontier with Olaf and Fritz Maberg.

The air was fresh and keen, a very thin gold light washed the new leaves.

Emil drove fast, so that Freya felt each thing as they passed, melt into everything. Nothing had any separate meaning. Houses ran into the sky—roads flashed into trees—whatever they passed swished by them like a racing wave. Freya did not have to be sure of anything, in such a strange, peaceful jumble.

Once or twice Freya spoke to Emil about something usual, because she felt that he was still frightened of her pain, and had not lost his guilty feeling. Talking of outside things made no difference to her at all, since what went on behind them, was the same. Emil grew more and more reassured, and once he ventured on a joke, and Freya laughed quite easily.

"I can go on like this," she told herself, "all the while I am at Maberg—except when I am by myself—or alone with Mother."

She knew that she could not deceive her mother by such tricks; and this would make it sometimes a great relief to be with her mother alone—and sometimes a great deal harder.

their nose gingerly through the uncertain, clumsy mass, they went like the wind.

Freya thought once, with a feeling like relief: "Now I don't need ever again to mind about being killed!" Later she had felt so precious with happiness, that sometimes a little danger had shaken her steady nerve.

When they reached the long valley below Schloss Maberg, they stopped for a second breakfast, at a wayside inn. Freya felt hungry at last and was glad of the new laid eggs and rolls and butter, spread before them. In her desire to make Emil feel more comfortable still, so that he could really enjoy their breakfast, Freya made a mistake she asked him suddenly: "Emil, do you know where the Nazis have sent Olaf and Fritz?" He looked so terrified that Freya felt quite sorry for him. His eyes fixed themselves helplessly on their mother and he began to stammer, but their mother said quietly:

"No doubt Storm Troopers are not allowed to speak of what their brother Brown Shirts are ordered to do—even when they know!"

And Emil muttered: "Well, it is better not!" and then brightening up, he added cheerfully: "I know they're all right, Freya—and we can send letters—addressed to their corps!"

Can Olaf answer?" Freya persisted.

"In time—oh, yes—of course, he'll answer!" Emil replied rather nervously, "and I dare say I shall be allowed to see them before long!"

He got up quickly and paid for their breakfast, as if it relieved him to have something to do, that broke off their conversation.

"I suppose," Freya said to her mother as she was about to get up, "that one of the worst parts of having anything awful happen to one, is that it makes the people you love best, feel strange to you! Emil behaves as if he had just met me for the first time!"

Her mother smiled at her with an answering irony. "For the young to share grief is difficult," she admitted, "for they are not—or should not be used to it; but you are the same to me and to your father, forever!"

"Yes, I know that!" Freya admitted, and felt for the first time vaguely comforted. Losing the enormous value of what she had been to Hans, had seemed to make her useless to everyone else. She had not only lost him, she had lost what she had meant to him. It was as if—without ever having abdicated—she had been de-throned.

After her mother's words, Freya felt a new flicker of hope; perhaps she was not, after all, so wholly valueless, even though Hans was dead.

When Olaf proposed to Sophie, she had thought all her difficulties over, and felt for the first time that she had found a way out. At last the dazzling prize that had been dangling over her head for so long, had fallen into her lap! But this prize of Olaf's love did not lie there passively, a mere tribute to her maiden charms, it developed an awkward life of its own. Prize or no prize, Olaf's love was going to be as difficult a possession as Sophie had found it unopposed.

Day by day, Olaf expected more from her—and not at all the kind of things that an engaged lover should have expected. For Olaf, to be a Nazi, was not a fashionable form of government—it was a spiritual crusade; and he seemed to think that Sophie wanted to share it. When she heard that Olaf was to be imprisoned in a fortress up to the date of their marriage, it came upon Sophie with a positive shock of relief.

Now she could buy what clothes she liked for her trousseau—she could settle upon expensive furniture for their Munich flat—she could even find quite conclusive reasons for having a much larger flat, in a more expensive quarter, than the one Olaf had already suggested.

Once married, this problem of handling Olaf, so that Sophie could get the maximum of satisfaction with the minimum of effort, would be safely over. Husband and wife are legally there, whether you please them or not, nor is it very easy for them to be otherwise.

Sophie's real pleasures would then begin; she would be Graf von Rohn; she would have more money than she had ever possessed; and prettier clothes would be ordered, whether Olaf liked it or not. She would entertain; and by buying expensive substitutes—make meek days; not too much of a sacrifice. She would have a very handsome, respected young husband to go about with, and love—this precious, aching, glittering substance—could be left to look after itself.

Sophie did not actually formulate these relieved and pleasant thoughts, while sitting in her mother's boudoir waiting for her father to return from Munich after his visit to headquarters, but the sense of them floated through the open windows with the soft spring air.

seau, and hoped that her father would have the sense to bring back a box of chocolates, as well as the latest news of Olaf.

"If your father is late," the Grafin at last observed, "it is to be supposed that he will have had coffee on the way. Bad coffee, of course, but his is not a discriminating nature! I told Maria to give him five minutes' grace. Should she wait longer than this. I must ask you to ring the bell to remind her of the time. It is a very serious thing—as you will find—when you start housekeeping—to allow a maid-servant to postpone a meal. Still, one should always consider one's husband—up to a certain point."

This remark seemed to Sophie to open up an interesting field for discussion. She gazed long and curiously at her mother, who had already survived a quarter of a century of married life and looked none the worse for it. The Grafin's hair was not grey, her complexion was unimpaired, and her tranquillity of so deep a nature that it indicated an untroubled history.

"I have often wondered, mamma," Sophie said, neatly biting off her thread, "how much one should know to one's husband. I don't mean about love-making, of course—one knows all that by instinct! Besides, Olaf is almost tirelessly controlled. I have never been able to make him lose his head once. I shall have children, of course—

Oh, like you, I think—so I hope one will be a boy—but not at once, whatever Olaf thinks—and as for this idea of the Nazis, about large families—I find it simply revolting! Peasants no doubt should—and can—have litters—but not people in our class! What I don't afford not to do what a man wants—without really upsetting him? Olaf wants such different things from me! And keeps on so about labor camps—and the spirit of fraternity, although it means mixing with quite common people. It's not what I mean by entertaining, having camps full of Boy Scouts or gymnasium contests thrust upon us!"

Her mother looked across her book at her daughter with the sympathetic eyes of a fellow conspirator.

She and Sophie had no illusions about one another. Neither had ever been able to get much out of the other. Each had fought for supremacy; and having failed, had given up the secret contest without antagonism. Now they merely respected each other, and went their separate ways; but there were more subjects upon which they agreed than upon which they disagreed.

"It is an interesting problem," the Grafin murmured thoughtfully, "but it is a pity that you cannot make Olaf lose his head. Such accidents help a young bride greatly! I have noticed these modern young men seem to have very weak passions! However, you may find later on that you can shake Olaf more than you now suppose. He has a rigid and controlled nature. Still, such an attitude on a man's part is quite suitable towards a young girl before marriage. He may let himself go all the more—afterwards—that type of man often does, and you too have something to draw on! I should, however, not emphasize the difference in your wishes—either now or later."

Learns That Ancient Old Wives' Remedies Have Some Merit.

Whenever I discourse of doctors and the science of medicine I am immediately informed by representatives of the profession that my ignorance of the subject is abysmal. To which I retort that other subjects are equally terra incognita, but I've got to write something or apply to government for relief.

So I make haste to credit the following scientific remarks to the Herald-Tribune, of New York. Carping critics may write to that widely known newspaper if they so desire.

The H-T editorial writer said a group of learned authorities had discovered certain ancient old wives' remedies contained some merit. An old home remedy for nosebleed—a piece of salt pork—actually seemed to work. A flaxseed poultice really would—sometimes—remove objects from the eye. And a poultice of mud was good for bee stings. And, on top of all that, there is a considerable amount of sense in the grand old mixture of sulphur and molasses for children in the spring. So there!

I hope this group of learned authorities continues to delve into tradition. I would rejoice to know that—by indorsement of the American Medical Society—a buckeye carried in his pants pocket will ward off rheumatism. I hope that is true. If so, it is fortunate that the feminine sex doesn't suffer to any alarming extent from rheumatism—but I am treading on dangerous ground.

I would like at this juncture to discuss the virtues of preventing various maladies of a small bag of ascorbifia suspended from the neck, but I don't know how to spell ascorbifia and I doubt whether the linotype does. So I'll refrain. But I will say—without fear of successful contradiction—that if an apple a day will keep the doctor away a bag of ascorbifia will render the wearer a recluse, a hermit or one of those folk whose best friends won't tell him. We had a maid once—for one day. But why go into that. After a 24-hour airing the home was again a place to live in. With the windows open.

Slight Error.

Mrs. Fannie Lou Harris, of the Marietta Journal, was in the throes of a heavyweight article when three Negro boys entered, bearing a tow sack. She had an idea somebody was sending a bushel of potatoes for a subscription until one of the visitors produced a long and slippery snake. "Here's your king snake," announced the spokesman.

Mrs. Harris disclaimed any desire for a snake, dead or alive. "But you had an ad in your paper," the trio insisted. That stumped the office force. Finally one bright mind solved the problem.

"Don't you remember that ad we ran for the florist?" he suggested. "He wanted to buy some cane stakes."

The trio departed with their serpent. But probably if they'd stuck around the square they would have found a customer. King snakes are popular with farmers—some farmers—because they're guaranteed to keep rats out of barns and corn cribs. They are said to be friendly fellows. But personally I'd rather have a few rats. If I felt a snake coiling around my ankles and climbing up to lick my hand in semi-darkness I'm sure I wouldn't have time to observe whether he was good old Mike or a total stranger of unknown habits and disposition. I'd be breaking records for running high and broad jumps.

Shrine Night.

Thursday night is Shrine Night out at Ponce de Leon Temple proposes to put on a big show before the Cracker-LOOKOUT game.

I hesitate to butt into the sports department's field, but I'll venture to say Yaarab will put on a show. It isn't often the heathen outside the Shrine have a chance to see their friends—and husbands and brothers-in-law—all dressed up in gorgeous raiment and tooting horns and marching in intricate convolutions, if that's the word. And to hear the Chanters chant.

Besides that, the Shriners get a split on the gate receipts—for their charity fund.

Add Miss Jessie Kate Iler, of Bulloch county, to Georgia's heroines, along with Nancy Hart, who stood off and captured those Tories.

Miss Iler had entered into a style contest at Statesboro, according to the Bulloch Herald. But her electric iron burnt a hole in the back of her two-piece rose sharkskin sport costume. I quote from the story.

But she arose before it was yet dawn—at 4 a. m., eastern standard time—put a new back in the dress and won the district contest. She enters the state competition at the Southeastern Fair next fall and I hope to meet her. I wonder if she could fix up those pants where I sat down in fresh concrete.

Carroll county's Sheriff Kilgore has a fellow Carroll county citizen in jail—or out on bond—on a unique charge. It seems to be about third cousin to drunken driving.

The culprit is accused of "plowing while drunk."

Personally, I can't imagine a chap about three drinks over and feeling that way being inclined to plow. But you never can tell just how it will hit you. Or so I'm informed.

Heat Got You Gasping? Dive in the Drink

COME ON IN! The water, chums, is fine! That is doubtlessly the invitation behind the enthusiastic waving of these sturdy youngsters enjoying a splash out at Bert Adams Scout Camp.

OVER OVERCAST Clouds are no barrier to Flying Cadets at Randolph Field, Texas, "West Point of the Air." High atop a broken layer of clouds, a cadet runs through daily maneuvers.

DECORATED Mr. Roosevelt usually does the medal pinning, but here Cecil Halpin, noble grand of Park Lodge, Hyde Park I. O. O. F., decorates him in recognition of 25 years' membership.

COOL SHOULDER That's what comely Rosamond Murray, of New York, noted society horsewoman, turns to the heat in this bathing suit with one shoulder strapped, one bared to breeze.

WHEE! Heat may be well-nigh insufferable in the windless, stone-rimmed canyons of Atlanta's streets, but not so many miles away there's a cooling oasis—in the pool out at Bert Adams Boy Scout Camp.

WINGED They've just won their pinions, have these members of the Women Flyers of America, by soloing. With the smiling threesome is Lieutenant Commander, Don Smith, New York aviation officer.

ON ROCKS At least, the ship in which she was cruising the sea of matrimony has wrecked. She's Greta Granstedt, of the films, and she plans to seek a divorce from Max De Vega, scenic artist.

Hopes Two Pints Not Enough Evidence To Convict Bud.

I have a case for the Civil Liberties Union. I wish they would lay off all efforts to obtain for Communists and Nazis their constitutional rights until they can get the fellow who can whinny like a stallion out of the Chase county jailhouse.

This case came to my attention after we had pulled up to the curb in front of the big stone Chase county courthouse in Cottonwood Falls, Kan., and were listening to the regular Friday night concert of the Chase county band on the courthouse lawn. Most of them are very cute high school girls in shorts with sunburnt legs, but they are helped out by a few old bald-heads who play the more complicated instruments.

Together they gave a rousing performance of the "National Emblem March" with the audience parked around the square in cars, and a few farmers in surreys and rigs. The barred windows of the jail are on the second floor of the courthouse. Its single occupant had his light turned on, so you could see him plainly, hanging onto the bars, listening to the "National Emblem March."

Whinny Returned.

When it was through, everybody honked their horns for applause, except the fellow in the jailhouse who, having no horn, whinnied instead. Immediately a couple of apparently despondent old sorrel mares whinnied back with keen interest.

I asked who it was they had in the jailhouse now. The fellows in the crowd agreed that it was probably still Bud. Because while Chase county has at least a dozen expert whinners, only Bud is good enough to fool a mare and get her to whinny back.

Bud's case, they agreed, was surrounded with unusual interest. The law picked Bud up a while back for selling pints—the back seat of his car had been almost level full of them—and since court was not sitting they had locked Bud up in one cell and stacked his pints in the far corner of the other locked cell as evidence, pending trial.

Naturally this was pretty dull for Bud. When some of his friends asked to go up and play pinocle with Bud in the evening to cheer him up, the law could hardly make objection. There was nothing out of the ordinary about the boys wanting to cheer up Bud.

Cheer Bud Up.

The curious thing was that an increasingly large group of Bud's friends, including some indifferent pinocle-players who were hardly more than acquaintances, began to arrive regularly every evening to cheer Bud up with a little game. This was unusual because Bud is not only the best whinnier in Chase county but also the best pinocle player, and you would hardly think that cheering Bud up regularly with a little game would get expensive for some of them.

Anyway, the law thought so. One day he walked in unexpectedly, and discovered that the fellows who had been cheering up Bud had also rigged up a long piece of wire with a hook on the end, and had been snagging the pints, one by one, out of the other cell, raking them across the floor through the bars, with the result that all the evidence against Bud had by now been drunk up, with the exception of two pints. Bud's friends now feel that no Chase county jury will ever convict a man of Bud's standing in the community on so small an amount of evidence.

So I wish a couple of smart New York Civil Liberties lawyers would stuff their pyjamas and a toothbrush in their brief cases and hustle on out here, so that the best whinnier and pinocle player in Chase county won't have to do any more time, when all they have against him is only two pints.

Pétain Orders Daladier Trial, Other Arrests

Action Taken Because of Roles in 'Declaring and Continuing' War.

VICHY, France, June 23.—(UP)—The French regime of Marshal Henri Philippe Pétain tonight ordered the arrest and trial of former high government leaders, including former Premier Edouard Daladier, because of their roles in "declaring and continuing the war" against Germany.

Pétain's council of ministers also ordered the withdrawal of citizenship and confiscation of the property and fortunes of all Frenchmen, including Daladier, who fled France after May 10, when Germany's invasion of the Low Countries began.

The trials will be part of a "domestic moral purge" of France by Pétain's new authorization regime, it was stated officially, and may affect thousands of central European refugees who have found haven in France during the past 13 years.

The purge of "those responsible for the war," besides Daladier, also will place on trial Georges Mandel, former minister of interior; Cesar Campinchi, former minister of navy, and Yvon Delbos, who occupied the cabinet posts of foreign minister and minister of national education at various times preceding the war.
